CONTENTS

Chapter I
INTRODUCTION ...1
  1.1 The scope of the Dissertation
  1.1.2 Sources and Methodology

Chapter II
THEORETICAL PERSPECTIVES ...6
  2.1 The Approach.
  2.2.0 “The Great Transformation”.
  2.3.0 A Look At Formal – Substantivist Debate.
  2.4.0 The Substantivist View of Economy in Society
  2.4.1 A Critique and Review of Substantivism:
  2.5.0 Karl Marx and Pre-Capitalist Societies
  2.5.1 Modes of Production
  2.5.2 The Asiatic Mode of Production
  2.5.2 (a) Oriental Despotism
  2.5.2 (b) Asiatic Stasis
  2.5.3 Feudalism and Feudal mode of Production
  2.5.4 Marx on India and Indian Feudalism
  2.5.4 (b) A Peep into Feudalism in Indian History
  2.5.5 Indian Feudalism and Jajmani System
  2.6.0 The Formalist or Neo-Classical View of Economy

Chapter III
INDIA’S VILLAGES AND VILLAGE COMMUNITIES ...44
  3.1.0 Introduction
  3.1.1 Towards a Typology of the Village.
  3.1.2 The Village as a Community.
  3.1.3 Baden-Powell’s Land Tenure-based Village Types.
3.1.3 (a) The Raiyatwari village:
3.1.3 (b) The Joint Village.
3.1.4 Some Further Village Types.
3.2.1 Myth and Reality of the Indian Village.
3.3.1 Images of the Indian Village Community in Imperial Discourse.
3.4.1 Disintegration and Decay of Village Communities.
3.5.1 A Reconsideration of the Imperial Image.
3.5.2 Isolation and Self-Sufficiency.
3.5.3 Caste and Village.
3.5.4 Village and the Agrarian Structure

Chapter IV
INTERNAL FEATURES OF THE VILLAGE AND INDIAN VILLAGE ECONOMY. ...

4.1.1 Internal Characteristic features of the Indian Village
4.1.2 Vertical Ties
4.1.2 (a) The Concept of Patron-Clientage.
4.1.2 (b) Patron-Clientage Categories in the Indian Village Communities.
4.1.2 (c) Class Model Vs Patron – Client Model.
4.1.2 (~) Patron – Clientage and Jajmani
4.1.3 Acceptance of Hierarchical values:
4.2.1 Indian Village Economy
4.2.2 A Resume on the Economic Organization of the Village:
4.2.3 Some comparisons:
4.2.4 “The Grain Heap”.
4.2.5 (a) W.C. Neale’s Analysis of the Village Grain Heap in Terms of Polanyian Reciprocity and Redistribution:
4.2.5 (b) Criticism of Neale’s Model.
4.2.6 Gradual Disappearance of the Grain Heap
4.2.7 “Misconceiving the Grain Heap”
4.2.8 Village Economy as Jajmani System.
4.2.9 Summing Up.

Chapter V
THE TWO SERVICE SYSTEMS ...

5.1.0 Economic Organization of Castes And work in the Villages.
5.2.0 Village Service system: Demiurgic and/or Jajmani
5.2.1 The Demiurgic Service System.
5.2.2 The Jajmani System: Its Characteristic Features.
5.3.0 A Brief Review of Jajmani Literature.
5.4.0 A Brief Comparison Between the “Demiurgic” and “Jajmani” Systems.

CHAPTER VI.
A REGIONAL SURVEY OF VILLAGE SERVICE SYSTEMS ...195

6.1.0 Regional Adaptations and Transformation in the Village Service Systems:
6.1.1 Factors Responsible for Regional Differences:
6.1.2 Temporal Changes Within the Regional System:
6.1.3 Transformation of the System:
6.1.4 Some Regional Profiles of Village Service System.
6.2.0 The “village service system” and emergence of Jajmani system in Uttar Pradesh.
6.2.1 The pre-existing “village service system”.
6.2.2 Types of Village Artisans and Servants:
6.2.3 The Grain Heap and the Grain Dues:
6.2.4 The Praja
6.2.5 The Emergence of Jajmani Relations and the Origin of Jajmani System.
6.3.0 The Kamin - Sepidar System of the Punjab.
6.3.1 Villages and Village Communities.
6.3.2 Kamins or Village Servants.
6.3.3 The Types of Kamins.
6.3.4 The Sepidar System.
6.3.5 Grain Heap and Grain Dues of Kamins.
6.4.0 The Village Service System in the Eastern Zamindari Villages.
6.4.1 Villages, Village Communities and the Village Service System of West Bengal
6.4.2 Development of Zamindari and Permanent Settlement.
6.4.3 Disintegration of Village Communities.
6.4.4 Village Servants and the Disintegration of the Village Service System.
6.4.5 Fishing for “Jajmani” in Bengal?
6.5.0 The Pawani \ Pauniya System of Bihar.
6.5.2 Villages and Village Communities of Bihar
6.5.3 Villages under Zamindari.
6.5.4 (A) Village Artisans and Servants.
6.5.4 (B) Remuneration to Artisans and Servants.
6.5.5 The Pawni \ Pauniya Village service System.
6.6.0 The “Saanta-Sevak” System of Village Service in Orissa.
6.6.1 Regional Background.
6.6.2 The Villages and Village Communities of Orrisa
6.6.3 Land Tenure System and Village Administration.
6.6.4 Village Artisans and Servants.
6.6.5 The “Saanta-Sevak” system of village service.
6.6.6 Service Relationships.
6.6.7 The Nature of Assessment and Tithe System of Remuneration.
6.6.8 The Decline of the System.
6.7.0 The Asami and Ayath System of Village Service in the Central Provinces (Madhyapradesh).
6.7.1 Background of the Region.
6.7.2 Village Communities of Madhya Pradesh
6.7.3 Village Artisans and Servants.
6.7.4 The Village Service System.
6.7.5 The Asami and the Ayath System:
6.8.0 The Vasvaya – Avat System of Gujarat.
6.8.1 The Village Communities and Village Types of Gujrat
6.8.2 The Vasvaya-Avat System of Village Service:
6.8.3 Modifications in the Vasvaya – Avat System by Village Types.
6.8.4 Village Artisans and Servants –Vasvaya.
6.9.0 Village Service System in South India
6.9.1 The Ayagar system of Karnataka
6.9.1 (a) villages and village communities:
6.9.1 (b) System of Land Management:
6.9.1 (c) The Ayagar System:
6.9.1 (d) A Brief Review of modern Studies:
6.9.2 Mirasi System of Village service of Tamilnadu:
(A) Villages and Village Communities:
(B) The Land System and Agrarian Structure
(C) The Mirasi System of Village Service.
6.9.3 The Paniwallu system of Village Service of Andhra Pradesh.
(A) Villages and Village Communities.
(B) Land System and Agrarian Structure.
(C) The Paniwallu System of Village service.
Chapter VII.

BALUTA SYSTEM AND BALUTEDARI OF MAHARASHTRA ...399

7.1.0 Scope of the Chapter.
7.1.1 Maharashtrian Village:
7.1.2 Village Community:
7.1.3 Village Management:
7.1.4 The Huks of Village staff as Grain imposts:
7.2.0 Land Tenure and Tenancy
7.2.1 The Village Land:
7.2.2 Upari Tenure:
7.2.3 Inam Tenure:
7.2.4 Raiyatwari System:
7.3.0 Baluta System:
7.3.1 Balutedars and Max Weber’s “Demiurgic Serfs”.
7.3.2 Caste, Class and Baluta System:
7.3.3 Watandar Balutedars:
7.3.4 ‘Upari’ Balutedars:
7.3.5 Baluta Hukk:
7.3.6 Maharashtrian Baluta Watan and its Cognates elsewhere in the Country:
7.3.7 Bara Balute:
   a) Western Maharashtra
   b) The Konkan:
   c) The Marathawada.
   d) Vidarbha-Nagpur region
7.3.8 Bara Alute.
7.3.9 Bara-balute of Maharashtra and their functional Prototypes in other regional systems:
7.3.10 Classification of Balutedars: Kass / Ola
7.3.11 Remuneration for Balutedars:
7.3.12 Nirakh:
7.3.12 Continuity and Change:

Chapter VIII.

FINDINGS AND CONCLUSION ...512