Acknowledgements

The problem of intergenerational conflict has interested me since some years, more so since my children entered their teens. It is almost like fulfilling my life's ambition to complete this rather complex study of students, parents and teachers.

My first word of thanks will be to Dr. Y. B. Damle, Head of the Department of Sociology, Poona University for helping me to realize my ambition. He has guided me whenever I faltered, encouraged me whenever I was bewildered and helped whenever I was confused. I am grateful to Dr. Damle and offer my sincere thanks to him.

It is a very trying task to read what one has written and more so when asked to do it with a request for comments. My friends Mrs. Uma Sharatchandra M.A.; and Mrs. Aruna Ramachandran M.A.; research assistants in the Sociology Department, Poona University have both done a wonderful job of going through the manuscript and offered their valuable suggestions. I am grateful to them.

Mr. A. G. Sule has helped with tabulating and analysing the data. Inspite of his indifferent health he has obliged by providing the tables as and when requested. I thank him.
Mr. Y. R. Phatak, Personal Assistant of ARDE, Pashan has helped in translating the questionnaires from English to Marathi. I acknowledge his kindness.

Any research in social sciences would be impossible without the co-operation of the respondents. The respondents in this study came from a wide range of people. The students, their parents and teachers, the principals of all the twenty schools in Pune, the officials in the Board of Higher Secondary Education and many others who have extended their unstinted co-operation have made me indebted to them. My thanks to them all.

The Library Staff in Jayakar Library, Poona University have been very helpful during my visits there. My sincere thanks to them.

Mr. R. R. Muniyal, Stenographer of ARDE, Pashan has typed this research report beautifully. I am grateful to him.

Finally I will be failing in my duty if I do not acknowledge my gratitude to my husband Wg. Cdr. S. C. K. Prasad and teenage children Anupama and Ajay who had to bear the brunt of this exercise. I am proud to acknowledge this co-operation.

Ramaa Prasad
