I consider it a pleasant privilege to have associated with Dr. M. V. Namjoshi in my research work. His positive outlook, winning manners and professional competence were the few push factors that augured well in my endeavour. I am most grateful for his inspiring guidance.

I would like to thank sincerely Dr. G. J. Khudanpur for sparing his valuable time to discuss with us certain issues involved in data analysis. This enabled us to sharpen the focus of the study.

My former colleague N. V. Namboodiri at the Indian Institute of Management, Ahmedabad deserves rich compliments for his timely assistance in data processing through the Physical Research Laboratory Computer Centre, Ahmedabad.

R. Subramanian is a friend of distinction. He initiated me into statistical analysis. Special thanks are due to him.

Dr. A. U. Shaik, ex-Director of Vaikunth Mehta National Institute of Co-operative Management took keen interest in my progress. I am indebted to him for his support.

Professor G. B. Kulkarni, our Director encouraged me to complete the study within the stipulated period of my fellowship. I express my gratitude to him for making me conscious of the time factor involved in research.

In the end, I am thankful to Shri V. N. Inamdar for the excellent typing work he has done.

Poona:
October, 1977.

N. Mohanan