ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It is with a profound sense of gratitude that I extend my heart-felt thanks to all those who have helped me in my research work.

I am indebted to Dr. M. N. Palsane, who supervised my work, for his extremely able and constant guidance, patience, and unfailing support throughout the period of my research. I am indeed fortunate to have been able to work under his supervision.

I wish to express my sincere thanks to Prof. Geeta Roy, Head of the Department of Psychology, Fergusson College, for her encouragement and support during the trying years of managing both teaching and research. I am very grateful, too, for the one-year Teacher Fellowship granted to me by the University Grants Commission and the authorities of the Fergusson College, and for the financial assistance provided by the former to cover research expenses.

My profound thanks go to Prof. A. S. Prabhu for his help in the statistical analysis of the data, and to Dr. S. D. Gore, Prof. Sharayu Bakre, and Dr. P. H. Lodhi for their valuable suggestions at critical phases of my work. I also wish to express my deep sense of appreciation and sincere gratitude to my father, Prof. V. V. Akolkar, and to Dr
Shashikala Gore, for their help in the translation of the scales.

I owe special thanks to my colleagues in various colleges, particularly Dr. Mrs. Thakar, Prof. Mrs. Shaligram, and Prof. Sane for their assistance during the data-collection phase of my research. I also greatly appreciate the valuable suggestions and support given to me by Dr. Usha Ram and by the other staff members of the Department of Psychology, University of Poona. I need not add that I am extremely grateful to all the respondents without whose participation, this research would not have been possible.

My sincere thanks are due to Mr. Sreenivas Potnis of System Setters and to Mr. V. D. Subhedar for competently handling the typing of my thesis, and to the staff of the Bai Jerbai Wadia Library, Fergusson College, and of the Jaykar Library, University of Poona, for their assistance.

Finally, I have no words to thank all my family members for their constant encouragement and confidence in me. It would have been impossible for me to have completed my research without their help and without the patience they showed with me throughout the period of my research.

Thank you are small words indeed to express the gratitude I feel for all these people and many others who helped to turn what seemed like a dream into reality.
