Acknowledgement

It is an extremely difficult task to write this traditional column of acknowledgement, and I am at a loss of appropriate words to express my deep sense of gratitude to all those individuals who have made immeasurable contribution to the preparation of this work.

First and foremost I would like to express my deepest sense of gratitude and respect to my esteemed teacher Dr. Debesh Chakraborty, Professor (Retired) of Department of Economics, Jadavpur University for his wonderful guidance, inspiration and invaluable contribution to the fulfilment of this thesis. He has always unhesitatingly extended his help, support, co-operation and encouragement, and I am ever indebted to him.

I am also very grateful to Dr. Sushil Kumar Haldar, Associate Professor, Department of Economics, Jadavpur University for his co-operation and support during the preparation of this work.

I would like to thank The National Comission For Women for providing financial assistance for carrying out this research and I am especially grateful to the Director, Mr Bimal Pramanik and the staff of The Centre For Research In Indo-Bangladesh Relations, Kolkata, for their invaluable contribution and cordial support during the various stages of this thesis.

I am grateful to the staff of the Department of Women’s Studies, Jadavpur University, Regional Census Office, West Bengal and The Centre for Studies in Social Sciences, Kolkata.

I am especially indebted to Mr C. Chakravarty, Joint Director of Census, New Delhi, Mr.S.S.Ray, Librarian and Ms. Sanchita Bhattacharya of The Centre for Studies in Social Sciences, Kolkata for their extremely kind and generous help.
My father Mr Amal Kumar Mitra and my uncle Late Kamal Kumar Mitra are my inspiration and my mother Mrs Elora Mitra and aunt Late Amiya Mitra are my strength. Their loving support and blessings has been my guiding light.

My brother Mr Anish Mitra has always been there for me with his love and support and my sister–in-law Mrs.Aparna Mitra has constantly encouraged me.

I thank my father–in-law Dr. Asitaranjan Bhadra Roy for his enthusiastic encouragement and my mother-in-law Mrs. Mandira Bhadra Roy. I am also indebted to Ms. Uma Dey, without whose support this work would not have been possible.

I am humbled by the love, support and dedication of my husband Dr. Jaydip Bhadra Ray who despite his extremely busy schedule, has always been by my side, tirelessly supporting and guiding me through the most difficult times of my life. My sons Ayan and Aditya have fulfilled me with their love, and made my life complete.

I would like to express my deep sense of gratitude to all those individuals who have made immeasurable contribution to this thesis, some have been identified, others unwillingly overlooked. I sincerely regret this lapse thus committed.
