ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

This research project would not have been possible without the support of many people. I would like to express my deepest gratitude to my supervisor, Prof. R. Raj Rao who was abundantly helpful and offered invaluable assistance, support and guidance.

Thanks go to Prof. Aniket Jaaware, Head of English Department, for his valuable suggestions and comments. The co-operation I received from other faculty members such as Prof. Shridhar B. Gokhale and Bajrang Korde of this department is gratefully acknowledged. I will be failing in my duty if I do not mention the administrative staff, Narendra Shingate and Vinny D. Paul, of this department for their timely help.

My particular gratitude is due to Paul Liboiron for providing me constant encouragement, inspiration, and for his keen efforts to give this dissertation clarity and precision and his advice that will remain beyond this work.

I wish never to forget the company I had from the fellow research scholars of my department and some friends of my hall. In particular, I am thankful to Omid Varzandeh and Dibyajyoti Sarma for their help.

Deepest gratitude is also due to the members of Women’s Studies Centre, especially Prof. Vidyut Bhagwat, director of this centre and Prof. Sharmila Rege, head of Sociology Department without their knowledge and assistance this study would not have been successful. I would like to thank also the librarian of the Women’s Studies Centre, M.P. Ashtekar, for her patience and help.
The author would also like to convey thanks to the University Grants Commission for providing financial assistance.

This acknowledgement would not be complete without mentioning my friends, especially Shahrzad Shahiri, Zahra Arzjani, Dr. Vinayak Purohit and his wife, Sharayu Mhatre Purohit, whose support helped the success of this dissertation and also all those friends who made my stay at the university a memorable and valuable experience such as Dalia Wahdan and Ishwari Pradhan.

I also want to thank my parents, who taught me the value of hard work by their own example. I would like to share this moment of happiness with my mother and father, brothers especially Omid, and Ali. They rendered me enormous support during the whole tenure of my research. The support and help that was given to me to carry out my research work by my cousin, Hussein Shoride, is also much appreciated.

Finally, I would like to thank all whose direct and indirect support helped me in completing my thesis on time.
