ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I am grateful to Prof. Kanan Gopal Bagchi, former Head of the Department of Geography, University of Calcutta, who initiated my interest in this problem and provided constant guidance and help during the entire period of this study.

I am indebted to Dr. Arabindo Biswas, Department of Geography, University of Burdwan for his help, encouragement and critical discussion in course of finalising the study.

I am also grateful to Prof. Sunil Kumar Munshi, Centre for Studies in Social Sciences and Dr. S. Bhattacharya of the Department of Geography, Calcutta University for their constructive suggestions on various occasions.

I express my thanks to Dr. R. Bhattacharya, Department of Geography, University of Calcutta who helped me in the initial stage of field work.

Thanks are also due to Sri. Debabrata Barua, United Industrial Bank and Smt. Susmita Barua, University of Burdwan for their help in the initial stages of field work.
This work would not have been possible if Agricultural Department, Survey & Land Records, Irrigation Department and different Block Development Offices of Government of West Bengal had not provided the basic data. My sincere thanks to all the employees of these offices.

I am grateful to the Director, Centre for Earth Science Studies, Trivandrum for his permission to carry on the work and extending different facilities. I also express my thanks to Dr. N. G. K. Nair, Centre for Earth Science Studies for his constant encouragement.

I cannot forget the help and encouragement rendered to me to complete the work by Dr. (Smt) Sukla Bhaduri and Smt. Mridula Niogi of Department of Geography, University of Calcutta, Sri. Aloke Moitra and Sri. Balaram Dey of National Atlas & Thematic Mapping Organisation, Sri. E. Saravanan of Centre for Earth Science Studies and Sri. Prabhat Das of Government of West Bengal.

Thanks are also due to Smt. A. Balkeez, Sri. A. Gopinathan, Sri. Devidas and Sri. K. Mohan Das and all others who helped me in the preparation of this manuscript.

My warmest appreciation to the people of the study area who had provided necessary help and information regarding the region in course of my field work.
