ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I am extremely grateful to Prof. Pijush Kanti Saha, Vice Chancellor, North Bengal University and Professor in Geography for his guidance, help and co-operation to carry on my research work. He has not only supervised this doctoral work but has also encouraged me to take up this topic which is quite relevant as well as modern in its objective and methodology. I also give thanks to the members of Ph.D. Committee (Calcutta University).

I owe sincere gratitudes to Prof. Bipul Malakar, Head of the Department of Economics, Jadavpur University for advising me in completion of the statistical part of this work.

I remain obliged to D.G. (North 24 Parganas) and D.G. (South 24 Parganas) of Bengal Police to give me protection during field survey in vast area of the Sundarbans.

I am also thankful to the Office of B.L.R.O. (North 24 Parganas) to help me very actively in collection of land records of different villages. I give special thanks to the staffs and surveyors of different B.L.R.O. Offices for assisting as well as sheltering me during the field survey.

I am thankful to Mr. Karun Dasgupta (Commercial Artist), and the staffs of Sujata Computer Centre, and the persons related to the press for their sincere assistance to get the thesis ready timely for submission.

I am highly grateful to my respected father Mr. Srigopal Das, mother Mrs. Mita Das, beloved brother and my husband to assist me always at every stage of my work and give me inspiration in this regard, without which completion of this work was tough-some to me.

At the end, I want to give thanks to all the villagers of my field area for their active co-operation with me without which very important primary database of my thesis could not be made properly.
