ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I thank God for the multitude of graces showered on me in life and also while working on this thesis. I have always felt the unconditional love of God when I was going through several tough phases in my life and felt that this thesis would be difficult to accomplish. But God believed in me and made my dream come true. Innumerable instances of silent ways of showing me the right path by God through human existence have strengthened my faith and belief in God.

I would like to acknowledge and express my heartfelt gratitude to all the people who have made the completion of this thesis possible irrespective of their presence, directly or indirectly. However, above all, it is the motivation, guidance and constructive criticism of my guide who made the greatest contribution by ensuring its successful completion.

I acknowledge with appreciation and gratitude the interest and involvement of my guide Dr. Ganesh Shermon. He was a steady support during the article process. I thank him for being a steady support and a great advisor throughout. His mentoring, advice and guidance has moulded me as a person and a practitioner in more ways than mere words can express. His insights in writing this thesis were very valuable. His encouragement came at the right time and helped me complete my work which would otherwise have been incomplete.

I must also express tons of thanks to Dr. Kalim Khan for his constant motivation, encouragement and support which went a long way in making me strong enough to put this work together.

I would also like to thank all the CEOs, HR Heads, Departmental Managers and Employees who were approached for data collection and who gave their valuable time and qualitative feedback when called for. Their cooperation is also a major reason that this study has been able to arrive at some interesting conclusions. My sincerest thanks to one and all.

I would also like to thank the entire staff of the Rizvi Institute of Management Studies and the entire library department who have been constantly supportive and helpful whenever approached. I wish to convey my heartfelt special thanks, in particular, to Ms. Swati Ghag and Mrs. Aparna Parab for all their support and co-operation.
I extend my gratitude also to all senior students registered at the Rizvi Institute of Management and specially Mrs. Garima Sharma for their support and critical comments whenever approached.

I would like to thank my parents and friends for their love and constant moral support.

Last, but certainly not the least, to all those who contributed to this research project and to my personal and professional advancement, but whose names have not been mentioned here, I offer my sincerest gratitude.
