Acknowledgement

This thesis is the fruit of my research conducted over the last few years. The journey through the intricate lanes and by lanes of this fascinating subject would not have been completed without the help of some people who have willingly extended their helpful hands to me. Here I express my gratitude to my supervisor Prof. Soumyen Sikdar who has always been supportive to me by providing invaluable guidance and the courage required to take the challenges I faced at different stages of my research. I am equally indebted to Prof. Asis Banerjee, my ex-supervisor who introduced me to this particular subject, I also acknowledge the help provided by Prof. Argha Banerjee of Khalisani College and Mr. Chiranjb Neogi of Indian Statistical Institute who made me familiar with some essential mathematical and statistical techniques.

During my personal visits to several companies, I have met a group of very senior executives who have been kind enough to take out time from their busy schedule, answer my questions and offer their invaluable suggestions. Among them Mr. Indranil Mukherjee and Mr. Gautam Hore of Haldia Petrochemicals, Mr. Modi of Hindustan National Glass Manufacturing Industries Limited, Mr. Ramen Barua of Andrew Yule, Mr. T. K. Sinha of Duncan Limited, and Mr. S. Bagchi of Gillette are to be specially mentioned. I am also very grateful to Prof. Sarmila Banerjee of University of Calcutta, and Prof. B. B. Chakrabarti of I. I. M. Calcutta for providing me valuable advice. I also acknowledge my debt to Mr. R. P. Mukherjee, Mr. Suniti Manna and Prof Sila Manna for providing me important suggestions and the mental support that often becomes very important in conducting a research programme. Special thanks also goes to my friends Amit and Subhadip who have extended their helpful hands in various stages of my work.

I also express my heartfelt thanks to the Library authorities of Indian Institute of Management Calcutta, Centre for Studies in Social Sciences Calcutta and University of Calcutta for providing me the opportunity to use their libraries. I am also thankful to my college authority for providing me the necessary assistance and leave.

It is my parents who have always been the inspiration of my life in academic matters as well as in other circumstances. Last but not the least, it is my wife Haimanti who has provided me active support in developing the paper.

Deb Kumar Chakraborti