BIBLIOGRAPHY

No complete bibliography of Russell's writings has yet been published. He wrote extensively, and his writings appeared in numerous periodicals and journals. All of them have not yet been fully traced, and a large number of his essays, reviews, letters, etc. still remain unpublished. McMaster University, Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, has collected a vast mass of Russell's papers, and they are preserved in the Bertrand Russell Archives at McMaster University. A detailed list of the collection of his writings has been published by Continuum I, London, under the title The Archives of Bertrand Russell. But the list is incomplete in the sense that new writings keep constantly turning up. A concise bibliography of Russell's writings and those of others on him has appeared in The New Cambridge Bibliography of English Literature, vol. IV, 1900-1960, published by the Cambridge University Press in 1972. The Philosophy of Bertrand Russell (Harper and Row, N.Y., 1963, vol. 2), edited by Prof. Paul Arthur Schilpp, contains an excellent bibliography. But it does not, for obvious reasons, cover the entire writings of Russell. Kenneth Blackwell, Archivist, the Bertrand Russell Archives, and Harry Ruja, Prof. of Philosophy at San Diego State College, California, decided to publish a complete bibliography of Russell's writings. But they ultimately gave up the plan and have prepared an abridged edition (see Russell: the journal of the Bertrand Russell Archives, No. 1, 1971; and No. 15, 1974). It may be pointed out here that my bibliography in this dissertation is exclusively based upon articles and books read and consulted.
