The present work entitled The Mleechas in Ancient India was undertaken under the supervision of Dr. B. B. Bratinda Nath Mukherjee, Carmichael Professor of Ancient Indian History and Culture, University of Calcutta. In course of exploration of the relevant texts and epigraphic documents the wealth of information swelled up beyond my imagination. The thesis is thus based entirely on primary sources. The modern writings dealing directly with the Mleechas, which are very few in number, have been utilised for presenting the views of different scholars. The diacritical marks have been used in accordance with the international system. They have been avoided in cases of modern names.

I am grateful to my mentor Prof. B.N. Mukherjee, without whose guidance the work could not have been completed. I would be failing in my duty if I do not record here my gratitude to Dr. Munishwar Jha, Vice-Chancellor, Mithila Sanskrit University, Darbhanga, Dr. Satya Ranjan Benerjee, Professor of Linguistics and Comparative Philology, University of Calcutta, Dr. Paresh Chandra Majumdar of the Department of Bengali, University of Calcutta, Pandit Madhusudan Vedtirtha of the Sanskrit Sahitya Parishad, Calcutta, and my father-in-law Sri Kalidas Bhattacharyya, Retired Professor of Sanskrit, Government Sanskrit College, Calcutta.
I am also thankful to the authorities and employees of the National Library, Calcutta, Asiatic Society, Calcutta, Sanskrit Sahitya Parishad, Calcutta, Museum Branch of the Archaeological Survey of India, Calcutta, and the Indian Museum, Calcutta, for providing me with the opportunity of using the reading room of the Libraries concerned. I am beholden to Smt. Jalpana and Kalpana Ganguly, Smt. Manjari Ghosh and Sri Banabihari Bhattacharyya of the Library of the Government Sanskrit College, Calcutta, for extending their cooperation and supplying books whenever and whenever necessary.

I am also thankful to my colleagues and friends for the inspiration I derived from them. Thanks are also due to my daughter Anamitra who used to reprove me everyday for not completing the work.

I take this opportunity of conveying thanks to Sri Jamini Ganguly for taking the trouble of typing this thesis.
