I am deeply grateful to my guide Dr. Sharad Joshi for his active guidance and valuable support during the entire course of this research study. He always made himself available for discussions and guidance despite his several preoccupations. The dissertation carries the stamp of his deep insight and vast scholarship. I am very thankful to Shri N. C. Saxena, I.A.S., formerly Member-Secretary, Planning Commission, New Delhi, for his constructive suggestions and for providing access to the library facilities of the Planning Commission at New Delhi. Similarly, thanks are due to Shri Ramesh Kolli (Indian Statistical Service), Director, National Accounts Division, Central Statistical Organisation, Sardar Patel Bhavan, New Delhi, for making available necessary data from the archives of the Central Statistical Organisation, Govt. of India, New Delhi. I am profusely thankful to the Officers and Staff manning the following libraries as indicated below:

(i) National Council of Applied Economic Research, Parishila Bhavan, Indraprastha Estate, New Delhi

(ii) Indian Institute of Public Administration, Ring Road, New Delhi

(iii) National Institute of Public Finance and Policy, Qutub Institutional Area, New Delhi

(iv) Ministry of Finance, Govt. of India, North Block, New Delhi

(v) Indian Council of Social Science Research, New Delhi

(vi) Industrial Development Bank of India, Mumbai

(vii) Jamanalal Bajaj Institute of Management Studies, Backbay Reclamation Area, Mumbai
My special thanks are also due to Shri J. K. Jadhav, Additional Director of Industries, Government of Maharashtra, Mumbai for useful discussions with him and for making available to me relevant published data relating to Industries Sector in Maharashtra. In this context, I am also thankful to Shri V.H. Deshmukh, Joint Director of Industries, Pune Region, Government of Maharashtra, Pune; and, Shri Ramesh Khandare, General Manager, District Industries Centre, Kolhapur for providing me useful insights into the working of District Industries Centres in Maharashtra. I owe a deep debt of gratitude to Shri D. R. Bhosale, Director of Economics and Statistics, Govt. of Maharashtra, Bandra, Mumbai and his devoted band of Officers including Shri M. L. Amrate, Jt. Director (Economics), Smt. Ashwani Dev, Joint Director (Statistics) for useful clarifications and for making available published statistics relevant to commercial and industrial activity in Maharashtra. I am specially grateful to my whole family including my aged mother, Smt. Lajyawati, for bravely putting up with the stresses and strains arising from my pre-occupation with this dissertation and the prolonged periods of absence. from my home at Delhi. I owe special thanks to my wife, Asha, whose green signal was a shot in the arm for me and she liberally helped me with proof reading and constantly encouraged me to keep at it despite several personal hardships it entailed for her. My daughter, Poonam, gave me considerable help in procurement of reference material and undertook computerised statistical analysis of some of the data despite playful distractions caused by my grandson, Aditya. Both my son, Chetan, and my son-in-law, Sandeep, had been highly supportive. Likewise, Swati, my daughter-in-law had been a source of radiant enthusiasm. I am particularly thankful to Shri Jitendra A. Pandya for organising the word-processing and designing of the manuscript against heavy odds. In this context, I deeply appreciate the help and support received from Shri Rajendra S. Yadav of M/s. Sadhana Advertising, Pune. I am also grateful to my numerous friends and colleagues, whose number is legion, who have directly or indirectly helped me during the course of this study.