ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The investigation depicted in the present thesis was carried out under the guidance of Prof. Ajit K. Medda, Department of Animal Physiology, Bose Institute, Calcutta. In this connection, the author wishes to express her grateful thanks to her revered guide for constant supervision, criticism and deep-sighted suggestions during the entire course of the investigation.

The author is indebted to the Director, Bose Institute, for the financial support and laboratory facilities. For their encouragement and cooperation, the author is greatful to Dr. Arun K. Roy, Animal Physiology, Bose Institute, Dr. A.K. Dasmahapatra, Animal Physiology, Bose Institute, Dr. Rama Ghosh, Bose Institute, Dr. Sujit Dutta, Gurudas College, Calcutta, Dr. N.K. Parial, Dept. of Botany, Calcutta University, Dr. N.C. Dutta, Dept. of Zoology, Calcutta University, Dr. S.B. Banerjee, Dept. of Zoology, Calcutta University, Dr. Pradyut Medda, V.C. College, Rahara, Dr. Pranabes Nath, K.N. College, Berhampur, Dr. M.K. Nath, Calcutta University and Mr. P.K. Sen, G.M., Prabhat Khabar, Ranchi.

The author conveys her heart felt thanks to her research-colleagues, friends and the member of staff, Department of Animal Physiology, Bose Institute, and to each of her beloved family members who have helped a lot during research work and preparation of the thesis.

The author expresses her sincere gratitude to Prof. Jitendra Nath Rudra, for his valuable suggestions and instructions during her academic career.

Lastly, the author affectionately acknowledges the sacrifice of her sons, Master Sohom Chaudhuri, during the works and preparation of the thesis.

Animal Physiology Department
Bose Institute
Calcutta - 700054

MADHUMITA GHOSH

1995