Acknowledgement

My first and most pressing debt is to my supervisor Prof. Kanika Chattopadhyay for taking on the project in its raw form and directing it towards its current state. Without her guidance, generous support, incisive criticism, constant reassurance and encouragement the process would have been impossibly arduous.

I deeply owe to my maternal uncle, Sri Debabrata Kundu, former Financial Advisor, West Bengal Tourism Development Corporation, who took me to various tourist lodges and introduced me to the top officials of the ministry of tourism. It immensely helped me to have access to the tourist information related to my research.

I am grateful to Rev. Fr. P C Mathew, Principal, St. Xavier’s College Kolkata. He always acts as a motivating force to me. He sent me to Australia in an international conference on ecotourism to present a paper on ecotourism in the Sunderbans. This patronage enables me to have an exposure on practical application of ecotourism concept by the advanced countries of the world.

I am thankful to Mr. Amit Kiran Dev, former chief secretary of the state of West Bengal to give necessary permissions to go through the classified papers and confidential reports on various tourism plans on the Sunderbans.

I am indebted to Sri Devisankar Midya, archaeologist and collector of Sunderbans artifacts, for his kind guidance and cooperation in my understanding of history, archaeology and architectural wonders of The Sunderbans.

I express my gratitude to the members of the PhD. committee of University of Calcutta to kindly allow me to take up this project and to make valuable suggestions in order to improve the work.

Last but not the least, my family members deserve special thanks for their patience, understanding and encouragement.
