ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I must express, at the outset, my gratitude to my respected teacher and my research guide Dr. B.K. Basu, M.Com, Ph.D., D.Litt. Professor of Commerce and Ex-Dean of the Faculty of Commerce, Social Welfare & Business Management, University of Calcutta; without whose blessings this thesis could not see the light of the day. He had taken the trouble of supervising my work despite his engagement in vast academic programmes throughout the year.

I would like to express my profound homage to late Mrs. Suparna Basu, wife of professor Dr. B.K. Basu who inspired me always for early submission of the thesis. It is my misfortune that she is no more in this world; and though I cannot have her blessings before submission of the thesis yet I feel that her blessings from heaven will continue unabated for my success.

I am highly indebted to Mr. K.K. Chakraborty, IAS, Regional Director, (West Bengal & Bihar) National River Conservation Directorate, Ministry of Environment & Forest, Government of India for his help and suggestions.

I wish to thank to Mr. A. Chakraborty, Environment Officer, Government of West Bengal for affording me ample time curtailing his valuable engagement and for providing me with necessary documents, literature etc.
The major difficulty I faced while making this study was the collection of reliable data. This difficulty, however, was overcome by the active help and cooperation I received from Mr. Biswajit Mukherjee, Law Officer, West Bengal Pollution Control Board. I express my indebtedness to Mr. Mukherjee. I also express my indebtedness to the officials of Calcutta Metropolitan Development Authority, & Public Health Engineering for their help in providing me with necessary documents, literature etc.

It gives me infinite pleasure to mention the name of the Hon’ble President of India, Sri. K.R. Narayanan, for sending me a text of literature of his lecture which appeared to me as source of inspiration and it was very helpful for my research.

I am also grateful to the Librarian of Calcutta University & British Council for their help.

I will be failing in my duties if I do not express my gratitude to Hon’ble Mr. Justice Umesh Chandra Banerjee for his valuable suggestions for this work.

I express my deep sense of respect to Mr. Niranjan Chakraborty in assisting me in presenting this thesis and also for proof reading.

Last but not the least I am thankful to my wife Rita Das and daughters Sumana Das & Suriti Das for taking responsibilities of domestic affairs; thus providing me an opportunity to concentrate on my research work.

(PRADIP KUMAR DAS)