ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The author wishes to express his sincere gratitude to Professor S. N. Sen, M.A., Ph.D.(London), formerly Head of the Department of Economics, Calcutta University and Professor Amlan Datta, Head of the Department of Economics, Calcutta University for their encouragement. The author is particularly grateful to Professor Mani Bhushan Sanyal of the University of Calcutta for his invaluable suggestions and helpful comments.

The author is sincerely thankful to the University Grants Commission for financially assisting him in his field investigation.

To Mr. W. Stoermann, Chief of the Industrial Committees Branch, Relations and Conference Department of the International Labour Office, Geneva, who kindly furnished many valuable reports of the Building, Civil Engineering and Public Works Committee, and to Mr. N. R. Ramasubramanian, Senior Research Officer, Planning Commission, New Delhi, who made available certain important mimeographed documents relating to the Third and Fourth Five Year Plans, the author owes a debt and takes the opportunity to acknowledge it.
