ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The scholar conveys her deep regard and sincere gratitude to Dr. Bireswar Banerjee, D.Lit., Professor of Geography, University of Calcutta, for his guidance and supervision leading to the completion of her work. But for his ungrudging help, valuable suggestions, most unceasing encouragement, invaluable criticism and thought-provoking comments, it would not have been possible to embark on this venture. He has done great favour by correcting the work with great care inspite of his heavy commitments in various fields of educational sphere.

The author expresses her thanks to the different organizations, institutions and individuals who have helped in the collection of the vital records, processing the data and other technical work. Particular mention may be made of the different Directorate of Census Operations, Calcutta Metropolitan Organization (CMPO), Calcutta Metropolitan Development Authority (CMDA), Indian Statistical Institute, Directorate of Industries, West Bengal, for their help and suggestions.

The author is also indebted to those others of the Department of Geography, who never failed to give their assistance whenever asked for. She regrets her inability to acknowledge them individually. Thanks are also due to her friends and colleagues of the Department of Geography for their kind help and co-operation.

Finally, the financial assistance rendered by the University Grants Commission, New Delhi, is gratefully acknowledged by the author who had been awarded a fellowship by the said organization during 1972-76.
