

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Expressions of gratitude and appreciation are due to many public school teachers and Principals of Colleges who have afforded me facilities and extended their wholehearted help in conducting mental tests in their Institutions.

I make my grateful acknowledgements to my colleague Dr. G. Kapat, M.Sc. D.Phil, Reader in Education, University of Calcutta and Sri H.K. Nandy, M.Sc., Reader in Statistics, University of Calcutta for their invaluable help, criticism and guidance at every step.

I have a very respectable mention in this connection about our Professor, Dr. S.C. Mitra, M.A., Ph.D. (Leipzig), F.N.I., under whose guidance and direction I began the study. Unfortunately for me the study could not be completed during his lifetime; he had, however, gone through most of the chapters, prior to his demise in July, 1962, and had discussions with me, throughout the whole investigation and encouraged me every now and then. It is for the memory of his help and encouragement that I have been able to bring the investigation to a completion.

I am especially indebted and grateful to Dr. D. Ganguly, M.Sc., Ph.D., Reader in Psychology, University of Calcutta, who undertook to offer me his most valuable guidance after the demise of Prof. Mitra. To him, I owe an exceptionally heavy debt.

I would fail in my duty, if I do not express my respectful gratitude to Prof. P.E.Vernon, M.A., Ph.D., Professor of Educational Psychology in the Institute of Education, University of London, who at certain stage of this investigation kindly examined the hypothesis - the basis of this investigation, and favoured me with his valuable comments which had been a great help to me to carry the mission ahead.

I am grateful to the many scientists and scholars who have proceeded me and contributed the materials from which this undertaking is developed. I have acknowledged authors and sources at each point where the documentation is most useful.

I also wish to take this opportunity of expressing my thanks to the many people who have given me help in various ways.
