Acknowledgement

In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, The Merciful. Praise be to Allah (The Almighty) for the blessing given to me, so that I can finally complete this work. Peace and Blessing be upon the lovely prophet Mohammed, Peace be upon Him (PBUH).

I would like to express my gratitude to all those who supported me and helped while I was writing this dissertation. My first and foremost thanks go to my guide, Dr. L. Ramamoorthy, Central Institute for Indian Languages, for supervising my research and for giving me important comments along the way. Without his patience and encouragement, I would have given it up a long time ago. He is an outstanding mentor through his invaluable academic and professional guidance, remarkable dedication to me, exceptional insight into research, and caring friendship. His extraordinary generosity with time, willingness to collaborate with me on projects, and constant, positive motivation have shaped my graduate career and fostered my intellectual development.

I also owe a debt of gratitude to all the members of the doctoral committee especially Dr. K.N. Ganga Naik, the Director of KIKS; Dr. R. Ramakrishna, professor and chairman of the linguistics department; Dr. C.S. Ramachandra professor of Linguistics, and B. K. Ravindranath, assistance professor, for their unfailing academic helpfulness throughout this research study. I will not forget to mention my deeply indebted to the former Director of KIKS, Professors, Ambalike Hiriyanna.

My special thanks go to Prof. Isma’eeel Masaud, faculty of Education, Sana’a University, Dr, Singh, faculty of education Abs, Amran University, Dr. Khalid Al-Shehary, Durham University, UK, and Dr. Khaled Huthaily, University of Montana, USA for their valuable suggestions for developing the questionnaire.

I am deeply indebted to many professor and lectures who supported my research and allowed to administer the questionnaire to their students. They are Dr. Hamood Nasar, Dean of the Hajjah College of education, Dr. Ahmed Al-orami, Dean of Abs College of education, Dr. Ibraheem Al-Shamy, the head of English Department, Hajjah College and Dr. Nea’ma Al-Zabedi, the head of English department, Hodeidah University.

My sincere thanks go to my colleagues and friends who have supported me in many different aspects. Without their help, my thesis could not have been accomplished by now.

I should not forget all the cooperative subjects / participants whom I used for my data from the two universities of Yemen. They are the indispensable assets of this study. Although I cannot list all the names of people involved in this project, my sense of gratitude toward them is enormous.

I also extend my heartfelt appreciation to my family and friends; I have been very fortunate to have their encouragement, confidence, and love for many years. I am forever indebted to my parents, brothers and sisters for generously providing me with countless opportunities to grow and learn, for continually supporting me in everything I do, and for showing me through example that it is possible to achieve goals with a persistent work ethic.

My gratitude goes to my wife for her encouragement, patience and understanding that made my motivation high all the time until the end of my dissertation. I am grateful to my sons and daughters for their understanding and tolerance.

Finally, I would like to thank everybody who was important to the successful realization of thesis, as well as expressing my apology that I could not mention personally one by one.
