ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

It is a pleasure as well as an appropriate point to acknowledge my indebtedness to a number of individuals and institutions who have contributed, directly or indirectly, in preparing this thesis.

At first, my gratefulness is to Professor Dr. Sukumar Bose, Head of the Department of Applied Psychology, Calcutta University, the director of this thesis. He helped me in every possible way at different stages of this research work. It would have been impossible for me to prepare this thesis without his generous help and invaluable advice. He took a great care to improve the quality of this thesis. He has always been helpful to me in any kind of problem starting from academic life down to the family life. Research work could be much more difficult for me without his understanding and co-operation.

I am deeply grateful to Dr. A. Khaleque, Associate Professor, Department of Psychology, Dhaka University, for his precious suggestions and useful comments about the statistical analysis and interpretations of the results of this study. A very special debt of gratitude is owed to him for his outstanding feedback, wise counsel and constructive suggestions throughout this venture.

I express my deep gratitude to Smt. Swami Aksharananda Moharaj, Secretary, R.K. Mission, Dhaka, Smt. Swami Lokeswarananda Moharaj, Secretary, R.K. Mission Institute of Culture, Calcutta and Dr. Gobindo Gopal Mukhopadhyya for their frequent inspiration and encouragement.
I am thankful to the managements of the Chitta Ranjan Cotton Mills Ltd., Bangladesh for their cordial help during data collection. I acknowledge the co-operation of all the workers who took part in this study.

I acknowledge my debt to the Ministry of Education, Government of India, for providing financial support for this study.

I am indebted to Calcutta University for providing academic facilities to me during this study.

I acknowledge the help of my elder brother Mr. S.R. Choudhury in preparing a number of figures for this thesis.

I wish to offer my sincere appreciation to Mr. Sabed Ali Khan, who carefully typed this thesis.

Lastly, I am also indebted to my permissive husband, Mr. Pinaki Das, for his unflagging interests in my efforts and extensive criticisms of the entire manuscript.
