ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It gives me great pleasure to express my heartfelt gratitude to Dr. Gowrishankar for providing excellent guidance and encouragement during the course of this work. I am indebted to him for encouraging me to think independently and creating the right ambience to develop the scientific temperament. He has been a source of immense strength and inspiration and gave me confidence to think into the future.

I remember Dr. Sunil Das, my former mentor for inculcating interest in science at the beginning of my career at Institute of Microbial Technology.

I would like to thank Dr. Lalji Singh for his encouragement and support during the crucial phase of my work. I extend my regards to Prof. Balasubramanian, former director of CCMB. I would like to express sincere thanks to Dr. Ashok Khar and Dr. Ramesh Sonti for their encouragement and help.

I have enjoyed the company of Abhijit, Hari, Shanti, Madhu, SaiSree and Rajkumari with whom I shared the everyday agonies and ecstasies of the research work. I fondly remember my former colleagues: Jayashree, Dattananda, Asha, Manna, and Poonam. I need to specially mention Hari, SaiSree and Maloy, who were giving me immense strength during the difficult times.

I cherish the friendship and company of Pournima, Rana, Suvendu, Roshni, Savitri, Zareena and Leela.

I would like to thank the 'genetics group' people for their useful suggestions.
I appreciate Narsimha, Gyaneswar, and Srinath for the maintenance of glassware and chemicals in the lab.

I also owe sincere thanks to the people in all the facilities of CCMB, particularly, the photography section, digital imaging lab, xerox facility and the workshop. I specially would like to mention the services of Nagesh and Mehar for DNA sequencing and oligonucleotide synthesis, respectively.

I would like to thank Hemalatha for teaching me how to type and who was always willing to help me with the computer work. Special thanks to Hari and Roshni for helping me with the proofreading of the thesis.

My Parents, Krishna, Varun and Gautam have been a constant source of encouragement and moral support, without whose help all this would not have been possible.
