ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It is an unique opportunity to be able to work under the guidance of Prof. V.K. Kothurkar, one of the most creative psychologist in India. His able and enlightening guidance and lively encouragement, made it possible to undertake research in an ambiguous field of psychology, as creativity. Prof. Kothurkar is the symbol of ideal teacher who instigates love for the 'taught' in the minds of the students. The present study is only a result of such love for psychology, induced by him. He, by his worship of knowledge, high ideals and personal example commands reverent emulation of his students. I shall never forget my days with him, which made a precious fraction of time. In fact, words are too finite to express my deep regards and gratitude for him.

In this research work I have received help from various quarters. First of all I must thank Dr. V.S. Tamhankar for his invaluable help and instructions throughout this research work. Because of the training in research methodology, that I could get from him I could plan the field work quite perfectly and could complete it successfully in a very short time. I am immeasurably indebted to him for ever. I am also boundlessly indebted to my brothers who constantly encouraged and supported me throughout this work. Particularly I must mention Mr. Anil Supansekar, who always offered his sincere co-operation, worked as expert judge and helped in drawing the figures. I also wish to express my genuine regards for Dr. V.V. Pendse, who gave me inspiration to undertake this research work.

I also acknowledge with thanks the help rendered by Mr. Kharshikar. He took interest in statistical problems that confronted me and guided me wherever necessary. I am of course thankful to Dr. Palasane for his valuable suggestions in working out factor analysis. I am also thankful to many others who helped me. Dr. Koshe and Mr. Y.G. Patwardhan read a part of the manuscript. Mr. Jayant Khare, a prominent artist and my school teacher helped in drawing the figures. Miss Manda Bakre, Mr. L.V. Kelkar, Mr. S.M. Panchwagh worked as expert judges. Mr. S.M. Patil and Mr. A.M. Mahajan always supplied me various references. Dr. Vijay Kelkar sent me from Berkeley the urgently needed books.

Mr. Tangade and Mr. Mhaske who worked as assistants deserve my thanks for doing the scoring and clerical work most reliably and intelligently. My thanks are also due to Mr. Jayade who typed this thesis accurately and neatly.

My last but not the least, thanks are due to the subjects and their parents who participated in this study enthusiastically, to the teachers and school authorities who offered their maximum co-operation and to the psychologists all over the world, who promptly sent the reprints of their published and unpublished studies. I owe my success to them.
