Every research activity involves a collective process. Mine is no exception. It is in this process that I gratefully acknowledge the intimate prompting and sagacious advice of my affable and learned teacher and supervisor Dr. Dawa Norbu who helped me in reaching my goal. Despite his busy academic schedule, he patiently pointed out the errors, clarified my inquisitive doubts and extended valuable suggestions and comments. His cooperative attitude throughout the course of this study was a great source of inspiration and encouragement. He assisted me more than a supervisor and has been with me wherever I faltered.

I also owe a deep sense of gratitude to Prof. Kalim Bahadur, Chairperson of the Centre for South, Central, Southeast Asian and Southwest Pacific Studies, Jawaharlal Nehru University, whose constant support saw me to wade out in the course of this study. My sincere regards are due to Prof. Davendra Kaushik, Chairman of the Centre for Soviet and East European Studies for his assistance. I also express my sincere thanks and appreciation to Prof. R.C. Sharma of the Centre for International Politics, Organization and Disarmament, Dr. Ganganath Jha of my Centre and Prof. Z. Zewar of the School of Languages.

I am thankful to the authorities of my university for sponsoring my field trip to the United States for a period of 28 days which enabled me to consult source materials from important libraries there.

I have no words to express my gratitude to my friend Reginald Jackson and his family members who not only rendered invaluable and unforgettable help to me during my stay in Washington but also taught me the humanness of the African-American community. I also express my thanks to Peter & Elisabeth Sinotte, Samphel 1a, Elena and several other friends in the United States who provided me with their much needed help to the extent possible which proved to be a timely boost in my work.

My sincere thanks are due to the authorities of the Libraries at Teen Murti, USIS, British High Commission,
Sapru House and JNU, New Delhi, for helping me with as much information as possible within their official limitations.

I would like to take this opportunity to convey my gratitude to my Afghan friends Abdul Habib Mayar and Kubra Mayar Mazhary, who provided me with profound insights and critical observations about Afghan life, politics and foreign policy. At the same time, I express my deep appreciation for the sustained and scholarly discussions I had with my colleague Raz Mohanmad Rashtiya during the course of this work.

I am thankful to my friends Abdisalam Mohamed, H.K. Joshi, Narender Sharma, Rajeev Sharma, Shahnaz, Soumen and many others who were helpful in some way or the other towards the accomplishment of this work.

Words fail to convey my feelings to my parents, brothers and my sister whose material and moral support was instrumental in the completion of this work.

In the end I must thank Mr. G.L. Sharma for doing the excellent word-processing job.

Finally, the errors of substance and judgment are my sole responsibility.

Devendra Kumar Sharma
