ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This work would not have been possible without the help, support, advice and participation of many people. First, I am indebted to Dr. V. D. Rupanawar, my supervisor, for his patience, dedication and encouragement during my PhD program. I have gained a lot through his exceptional foresight, immeasurable contribution, sincere advice, creative ideas and continuous support. I am truly grateful to him.

I am also indebted to Dr. Sanjay S. Kaptan, HoD of Commerce & Research Centre for his incessant encouragement and constructive suggestions throughout the course of this research and provided invaluable feedback to my thesis.

Special thanks are due to Mrs. Kulkarni for her sincere efforts in polishing the language of this thesis. I have also benefited from the stimulating discussions and the support given in many ways by my friends: Dr. Mashaal Al-refi, Dr. Mohammed Alrafiq, Prof. H. Gaikwad and Dr. Nabil Alhazmi. I deeply appreciate the frank support, significant assistance, and friendship of my close friends Colonel. Nabil Alkohlani, Colonel. Abdualrahman Alahdal, Colonel. Ali Alazaki, Mr. Amar Alkarabi, Mr. Qais Ahmed Haza’ a and Rasik J. Patel.

This research was supported in full by the Government of the Republic of Yemen, Ministry of Defence, therefore, I deeply appreciate all those who supported me for completing this study, Special thanks are due to: Brigadier General. Abdullah Alkabudi, General director of Financial Department, Colonel Molataf Alhujari, Director of Scholarship Department, Colonel Zaid Mohamed Zaid, the X Director of Scholarship Department.

Through my life, my loving parents were the best teachers I have ever had. You taught me to respect others and helped me build what has brought me this far. You can take all the credit for much of what I have achieved and what I will achieve in the future. My beloved uncle in law, Major Rashad Al-amri, has been a constant source of support and inspiration. I owe you all much more than words can express.

Finally, to my sweet and loving wife, who believed, supported, and stood by me; and to my beloved son and daughter, Ibrahim and Marram, to whom I still owe lots of fun hours – you kept me going through it all. I shall never forget your endless love, patience, sacrifice, support and encouragement. Without you, this work would have never seen light. Words will never say how grateful I am.
