ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The present work was completed with valuable suggestions from number of persons at different stages. First and foremost, I would like to take this opportunity to express my heartfelt gratitude and thanks to my supervisor R.K. Chattopadhyay, Reader, Department of Archaeology, University of Calcutta. He has been the guiding force behind the work from its inception to the final correction.

During the course of my explorations I was greatly aided in my search for archaeological sites by my local guide Muzaffar Ahmed Ansari. It his unwavering zeal for locating the now lost settlements that together we traversed the difficult terrain of Chanderi.

I would also like to thank the Director General, Archaeological Survey of India for granting me permission to photograph and study the sculptural and architectural specimens kept in the Chanderi site-museum.

During the course of the present work I had the opportunity to visit a number of libraries in Delhi. I owe a deep sense of gratitude to the librarians of Indian Council of Historical Research (ICHR), Institute of Archaeology, Archaeological Survey of India, Red Fort, Indira Gandhi National Centre for the Arts and Central Archaeological Library for their ungrudging support in tracing out elusive data from their vast store of books.

I take this opportunity to express my heartfelt thanks to Ms. Swati Ray, Lecturer, Dept. of Ancient Indian History and Culture, University of Calcutta for going through the manuscript of the thesis and suggesting corrections wherever required.
I owe a deep sense of appreciation to Goutami Bhattacharya for her persistent support and encouragement all through the course of this work. She took time from her work schedule to go through this manuscript and made valuable suggestions and correction.

My visits to Kolkata in connection with the present work would not have been possible without the open hospitality extended to me by Mr. S.S. Bhattacharya and Mrs. Purnima Bhattacharya. I shall forever be indebted to their love and care.

Last but not the least I want to dedicate the present thesis to my father Late Shri P.S. Rajput and my mother Mrs. Omkar Rajput.
