ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

In the course of this study, I was guided by Professor Rahmatullah Khan. I am highly indebted to him not only for introducing me to the field of international environmental law but also for the understanding with which he enabled me to solve the academic and intellectual problems I encountered in the course of this work. Without his active help it would not have been possible to complete this work in time.

I am extremely thankful to Professor R.P. Anand for encouraging me to take up the topic as well as giving valuable suggestions for the purpose. I also thank Dr. Yogesh Tyagi for his friendly advice from time to time. I am thankful to Professor J.M. Dave, School of Environmental Sciences, for his generous help at various stages of the work.

I am deeply grateful to Mrs. Gro Harlem Brundtland, Chairperson of World Commission on Environment and Development (Geneva) and Prime Minister of Norway, for making me available reports of the Commission.

Several personalities and institutions extended their help and provided me valuable material in the course of my work. They, among others, are: Mrs. V. Lauder of Water Quality Division of Department of Environment, London; Mr. R.D. Deshpande, Environmental Affairs Officer, United Nations...
Environment Programme, Regional Office, Bangkok; Ms. Joy Morgan, Asst. Technical Officer, Thames Water Authority Reading, Berkshire; Mr. Gordon Cullingham, Editor, International Perspectives, Ottawa; Mr. P.M. Bakshi, former Member, Law Commission of India; Mr. M.C. Mehta, Advocate, Supreme Court of India; Mr. P.R. Gharekhan, former Member-Secretary, Central Pollution Control Board, New Delhi; Mr. J. Subba Rao, former Joint Secretary, Department of Environment, Govt. of India; Mr. R. Parthasarthy, former Chairman, Vadodara Urban Development Authority, Baroda; Dr. G. Sundaram, former Chairman, Gujarat Pollution Control Board, Gandhinagar. I express my deep sense of gratitude to one and all.

During my visits to the State Pollution Control Boards in Bombay, Calcutta, Gandhinagar, Lucknow and Madras, the concerned officers of the Boards extended their cooperation and help in having discussions with me on the subject. I am thankful to all of them.

I worked in the libraries of the following institutions: Jawaharlal Nehru University; Indian Council of World Affairs; Indian Society of International Law; Indian Law Institute; Department of Environment, Govt. of India; Central Pollution Control Board and United Nations Information Centre. I am highly thankful to the authorities and the staff of these libraries for giving me access to documents and books bearing on the subject.

Thanks are due to Sujata for extending her generous help in the finalisation of the work.

I am highly indebted to my father, Shri Hartambhai Desai, for his constant encouragement, guidance and support without which this work would not have seen the light of the day.

I am also grateful to the Government of Gujarat, for providing me fellowship to carry out the research work.

I thank Mr. Chand Sharma for typing the manuscript.

New Delhi
10 June 1987