ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Any empirical research work involves reliance on primary and secondary sources besides occasional inspiring discussions. The researcher is grateful to the respondents who have provided factual information. Numerous theoretical and empirical works of scholars have provided insight in diverse dimensions of the research problem. Some of the scholars had taken the trouble of sparing time for valuable discussion with the researcher. Particularly, Prof. Everett M. Rogers of University of Southern California, a reputed specialist on innovation-adoption studies, has helped through discussion and also by making certain papers available. The researcher has been, time and again, encouraged by Prof. Yogendra Singh and Prof. K.L. Sharma of J.N.U. Finally, the research supervisor, Dr. Nirmal Singh, has taken much trouble in orienting and directing the work. The researcher is thankful to all these social scientists for directly or indirectly helping him in completion of research work.
