CONTENTS

Preface i

Acknowledgement ii

List of Tables vii

List of Figures xiv

CHAPTER 1

INTRODUCTION

1.1 The Historical Backdrop of Brand Extension – A Brief Timeline.... 1

1.2 Nature of the Problem................................................................. 7

1.3 Review of Literature....................................................................... 11

1.4 Research Gap.................................................................................. 29

1.5 Objectives of the Study.................................................................... 30

1.6 Research Methodology.................................................................... 31

1.7 Plan of Work................................................................................... 43

CHAPTER 2

CONCEPT OF BRANDING AND BRAND EXTENSION STRATEGY

2.1 Introduction.................................................................................... 45

2.2 Types of Brands.............................................................................. 47

2.3 Role and Functions of Brands......................................................... 49

2.4 Brand Evolution Trajectory............................................................. 54

2.5 Brand Equity................................................................................... 57

2.6 Brand Equity Models....................................................................... 61

2.7 Brand Extension Strategy................................................................. 67

2.8 Types of Brand Extensions............................................................... 68

2.9 Identification of Potential for Brand Extensions............................ 75

2.10 Brand Extension Model................................................................. 78

2.11 Factors for Effective Brand Extensions.......................................... 81
CHAPTER 3
BRANDING AND BRAND EXTENSION STRATEGY IN FMCG SEGMENT – GLOBAL AND INDIAN PERSPECTIVE

3.1 Introduction................................................................................................. 91
3.2 Brand Value – Globally and in the Indian Context................................. 94
3.3 Country / Region-wise Standing of Brands........................................... 104
3.4 FMCG Brands - Indian Scenario............................................................. 106
3.5 Indian FMCG Sector and Brand Extension Strategy............................ 113
3.6 Observations on Global and Indian Top 100 Brands............................ 114
3.7 Conclusions.............................................................................................. 115

CHAPTER 4
A SURVEY ON BRAND EXTENSION STRATEGY IN FMCG SEGMENT IN KOLKATA - AN EMPIRICAL STUDY THROUGH DATA ANALYSIS AND INTERPRETATION OF:
I. KOLKATA CONSUMERS’ PERCEPTION AND EVALUATION OF BRAND EXTENSIONS IN FMCG SEGMENT
II. BRAND MANAGERS’ VIEWS ON BRAND EXTENSION STRATEGY IN FMCG SEGMENT

4.1 Basis of Survey of Brand Extension in FMCG Segment in Kolkata................................. 118
4.2 Analysis of Demographical Data .............................................................. 122
4.3 Analysis of Technical Data to Understand Kolkata Consumers’ Perception and Evaluation of Brand Extension in FMCG Segment.................................................................130

4.4 Brand Managers’ Views on Brand Extension Strategy in the FMCG Segment.................................................................................................................................202

4.5 Views and Suggestions from Brand Managers........................................218

4.6 Cluster Identification..................................................................................219

4.6.1 Cluster Membership & Perceptions of Consumers of Kolkata about Parent Brand Similarity with its Extended Brand with respect to FMCG Products.................................................................219

4.6.2 Cluster Membership & Perceptions of Consumers of Kolkata about Parent Brand’s Reputation and its Impact on Extended Brand with respect to FMCG Products.............................................................................232

4.6.3 Cluster Membership and Kolkata Consumers’ Perceptions of Safety, Security, Uncertainty and Risk Involvement in Purchasing Parent Brands and their Extended Products Compared to New Brand Purchase.............................................................................................247

CHAPTER 5

CONCLUSIONS, IMPLICATIONS, LIMITATIONS AND SCOPE FOR FURTHER STUDIES

5.1 Conclusions and Implications: Similarity and Fit between the Parent Brands & Extended Brands are important for Consumers’ Evaluation in FMCG Segment.................................................................259

5.2 Conclusions and Implications: Reputation of the Parent influences the consumer to buy Extended Brands.................................................................263
5.3 Conclusions and implications: Kolkata Consumers' perception of risk and uncertainty involved in buying newly launched brands.............268

5.4 Conclusions and implications: Brand Managers' views on Brand Extension Strategies in FMCG Segment........................................269

5.5 Limitations.................................................................272

5.6 Scope for Further Studies..................................................273

BIBLIOGRAPHY.....................................................................274

ANNEXURES

ANNEXURE - 1: QUESTIONNAIRE FOR SURVEY OF CONSUMERS PERCEPTIONS TOWARDS BRAND EXTENSION..............................286

ANNEXURE - 2: QUESTIONNAIRE FOR SURVEY OF BRAND EXTENSION FROM BRAND MANAGERS' POINT OF VIEW...........................292