ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

In completing this thesis, I find my intellectual debts ramifying to a wide circle of intellectual community in the Jawaharlal Nehru University and outside.

Several of my teachers and colleagues, past and present, had created in me a quest to know more - to ask how and why. As I struggled through this problem and saw the end of the tunnel eventually their contributions in my intellectual pursuits at different stages, made vivid impacts and I remember them with gratitude.

The Centre for the Study of Social Systems, Jawaharlal Nehru University, during my tenure of studentship provided an ideal setting for sociological enquiries. My thanks are due to the members of faculty and students. Prof. T.K. Oommen, my supervisor, followed me patiently through lines of reasoning that were still in tentative form and suggested new formulations and scientific lines of investigation. I am indebted to him for his intellectual support and enthusiasm at every stage of this study. Prof. Ravindra K. Jain, Chairman of the Centre, Shri C.N. Venugopal Assistant Professor and Prof. Partha Nath Mukherji (now at Indian Statistical Institute, Calcutta) were the three faculty members from whom I gained considerable intellectual sustenance. I remember with gratitude their keen interest in my research.

During my field work days in Kerala I received help from a vast number of people. I wish to acknowledge my appreciation to Shri Puthupalli Raghavan, Prof. P.S. Velayudhan, Shri C. Narayana Pillai, Shri D.C. Kizhakemuri, Shri V.C. George
(the Octogenarian AKCC Leader), Shri K.C. Thomas (Retired Editor Deepika), Shri K.A. Mathew (Tiruvalla) who spared a great deal of their time for me and placed under my disposal their vast collection of rare research materials. Librarians and staff of many libraries in Kerala and New Delhi — special mention may be made of the Trivandrum Public Library, Kerala University Library, Jawaharlal Nehru University Library, Nehru Memorial Museum and Library (NMML) and National Archives — gave unreserved help in locating the source materials. I acknowledge gratefully their assistance.

Most important of all, the common man in Kerala and his counterparts in other parts of this great country, from whom I learn valuable sociological lessons and derive inspiration need special mention here.
