ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

This work would not have seen the light of the day without the relentless encouragement, persuasion, and guidance provided by my Supervisor, Dr. Mrs. Manjula Bose. Her personality itself was a source of inspiration to me when I saw whatever scribbling (which I thought was a part of the report, especially in the earlier years) I submitted to her was corrected in a patient but quick manner, in spite of her engagement in a variety of activities. This lessened my psychological burden of having to work regularly for the thesis on reaching home after completing the demanding daily duties. Her guidance and direction turned out to be the most crucial factor in not only improving the quality of this work, but also in ensuring that the sense of direction is never lost.

I completed this work while working in a commercial bank, then in a development bank, and finally in academics. Consequently, I have always been fortunate to consult a few very sharp and experienced personnel working in various areas of the financial sector as and when I required my queries to be answered or doubts to be clarified. Mr. H. Purna Prakash Rao, then Chief Manager (and now Deputy General Manager), Dr. K. Shanker Shetty, then General Manager (now retired), Mr. N. Ganeshan, then Senior Manager (now retired), all in Vijaya Bank Head Office, Mr. Sanjoy Chowdhury, then Chief General Manager and now Executive Director, Mr. P. Jayashanker, Manager, and a clutch of young sharp minds who by then became Managers during previous years after joining as Management Trainees, all in IFCI, are just a few of them to whom I owe an unrepayable debt. Dr. Kamal Ghosh Ray, Professor, IILM, put myself under continuous pressure to complete the work while regularly enriching me with his greatly analytical insights. A number of my colleagues and close friends at both the Delhi and Kolkata Campuses of IIFT constantly provided me with encouragement to carry out the work, and gladly obliged to whatever support I requested from them. The list is rather long, but I cannot help mentioning the names of Dr. K. Rangarajan, Professor and Centre-Head, Kolkata Campus, Dr. Pinaki Dasgupta, Associate Professor, Dr. Saikat Bannerjee and
Dr. Debasish Chakrabarty, both Assistant Professors, and Urna Dutta, a Ph D candidate in JNU.

I also owe a great amount of debt to Dr. Udayan K. Basu, a doctorate in Nuclear Physics by education, and a well-known Investment Banker (an AGM with SBI Capital Markets Ltd. When I met him for the first time) by profession, and now an Advisor with the Indian Association for the Cultivation of Science, Jadavpur. It is he who taught me (directly and indirectly) the first lessons of the real life intricacies of the market for Initial Public Offerings.

I have no words to express my sense of gratitude to my wife, my parents and my four-and-half-years old daughter, who made a lot of sacrifice (the latter one unknowingly) to make this work possible even after attending to the regular needs of duty at whichever office I attended to during all these years.

I have also benefited from the active cooperation of the staff of the libraries at various organizations — Vijaya Bank, Bangalore Stock Exchange, Calcutta Stock Exchange, Indian Institute of Foreign Trade, Indian Institute of Management Calcutta, ISI Calcutta, and ISI Delhi. I take this opportunity to express my gratitude to them.
