Acknowledgements

This thesis, which I long cherished to pen down, would have been quite impossible without the guidance of Professor Dikshit Gupta, Department of Philosophy, University of Calcutta. I am deeply indebted to him and have no words to express my gratitude.

Writing a thesis requires inspiration, which I got in full measure from the family members of my research guide.

I acknowledge the invaluable assistance rendered by Soumitra Pal, who by his advice helped to collate varied materials which I had gathered during my research in a field which had little or no chartered course.

I would also like to thank chief librarian and staff of Jadavpur University and National library, Kolkata, for their unfailing help in providing books. I also express my sincere gratitude to my colleagues and staff of Maharani Kasiswari College who obliged me with their precious suggestion and assistance.

Since writing a thesis is a time consuming affair, I should thank my mother, sisters, nephew, niece and other family members who spared me from carrying out family chores, which I selfishly lapped up.

Last, but not the least, thanks to information technology, I am indebted to various web sites for opening up their storehouses of knowledge access to which instantly gave me materials, which otherwise would have been quite impossible to gather.
