BIBLIOGRAPHY

The following bibliography is not exhaustive, for the writer has only included those books and articles which he has found useful.

A. Works of Santayana

1896 The Sense of Beauty; Being the Outline of Aesthetic Theory. New York, Charles Scribner's Sons; also published by The Modern Library, New York.

1900 Interpretations of Poetry and Religion. New York, Charles Scribner's Sons; also published by Harper and Brothers, New York.

1905 The Life of Reason; or, The Phases of Human Progress. New York, Charles Scribner's Sons (5 vols); these volumes are also published by Collier Books, New York.

The Life of Reason: Reason in Common Sense (vol I).

The Life of Reason: Reason in Society (vol II).

The Life of Reason: Reason in Religion (vol III).

The Life of Reason: Reason in Art (vol IV).

1906 The Life of Reason: Reason in Science (vol V).

1915 Egotism in German Philosophy. New York, Charles Scribner's Sons; also published in London by J. M. Dent and Sons.

1933 Some Turns of Thought in Modern Philosophy. New York, Charles Scribner's Sons; also published in Cambridge (London) by the University Press.

1940 "A General Confession", in The Philosophy of George Santayana, Edited by P.A. Schilpp (The Library of Living Philosophers).

"Apologia Pro Mente Sua: A Rejoinder", in The Philosophy of George Santayana, Edited by P.A. Schilpp.

1945 The Middle Span. New York, Charles Scribner's Sons.

B. Works on Santayana

INDEX

Advaita Vedanta, 16, 17, 62, 63.

Aesthetics, 161, 162, 182, 213.

Aesthetic empathy, 178.

Aesthetic pleasure, 176-178, 182, 183, 243.

Aesthetic unity, 215.

Aesthetic value, 163, 164, 174, 176, 204.

Alexander, S., 124, 125, 286, 287.

Anaximander, 81.

Animal faith, 24, 34, 37, 90.

Aquinas, St. Thomas, 13.

Aristotle, 13, 18, 84, 102, 265, 290-291.

Art, iii, 216-217; fine and servile, 217-219, 230-231; plastic, 226-228; and life, 229-230; rational, 248-249.

Artistic criticism, 228, 229, 232.

Ayer, A.J., 3.

Banfi, A., 152.

Baumgarten, 161.

Beauty, Santayana's psychological approach to it, 157-160; beauty and truth, 170-174; beauty as objec­tified pleasure, 182-183; beauty as an essence, 184; beauty rests on imagination and pleasant experience, 193-195; beauty as derived from the pleasures of sight, 196-197; beauty of form, 198; beauty of expression, 203-204.

Bell, Olave, 213.

Bergson, Henri, 55, 56, 60, 92, 113-114, 171.

Berkeley, George, 45, 91, 92.

Bosanquet, B., 207-211.

Buchler, Justus, 326.

Buddhism, 92.

Bradley, A.C., 242.

Bradley, F. H., 1.

Browning, Robert, 279.

Catholicism, as a religious doctrine, 10; its influence upon Santayana, 10-13.

Christianity, 310-312.

Clarke, W. Norris, 111, 112, 114.

Collingwood, R. G., 206, 207.

Commonsense, its place in Santayana's philosophy, 22-27; 44, 45.

Complex essence, 62-63.

Comte, Auguste, 315-316.
Cogito, ergo sum, 29, 30.
Concrete interest, 282, 284-285.
Cory, Daniel M., v.
Contemplation, 166, 168, 305, 312, 336.
Cosmic piety, 317.
Critical realism, 123-125; and Russell, 127-129.
Croce, Benedetto, 204-206.
Dante, 224.
Datum, 35, 128-129.
Democritus, 81, 83, 85, 86, 92, 290.
Determinate organization, 201-202.
Dialectic, as a method, 38-39; Santayana's dialectic as distinguished from that of Hegel, 39-40.
Dialectical materialism, 100-101.
Dialectical physics, 5.
Discursive organization, 201.
Disillusion, 12, 299.

Dogmatism, its place in Santayana's philosophy, 47-49.
Drake, Durant, 123, 128, 129.
Dualism, epistemological, 124, 128.
Edman, Irwin, 274-275, 298-299.
Egoism and altruism, 266, 267.
Eidetic reduction, 19.
Electronic theory, 84.
Emerson, R. W., 259-260.
Epicurean ideal, 254.
Epiphenomenalism, 268, 270.

Essence, i, ii, iv, 7-10, 13-15, 18-22, 34, 35, 39, 40, 43, 46, 48, 53-55, 57-60, 62-71, 100, 112, 116-117, 139, 274, 324, 325; and intuition, 72-74, 78; as a part of being, 75-76; and existence, 104-109, 118-120; essence is not to be taken as a possibility, 118; essence of Santayana and idea of Locke, 140-141.

Essentialism, 5, 7-10, 13, 49, 273.

"Eternal objects"; Whitehead's, 116-117.

Eternity, its meaning in Santayana's philosophy, 54-55; and subsistence, 56.
Ethics, 251; rational, Santayana's definition of, 253, 255; naturalistic, 258; 263; individualistic, 259–260.

Eudaemonism, 254.

Expression, as an aesthetic element, 202–204.

Fact and truth, 171–172.

Facts and essences, 65.

Fechner, 346.

Flux, 33, 82, 83–86, 92, 106, 107, 114.

Foerster, Norman, 277.

Force, Plato's theory of, 86.

Form, Aristotle's, 13, 18, 55.

Form, as an aesthetic element, 198.

Forms and essences, 67, 68.

Fry, Roger, 213.

German idealism, 15, 32, 33.

Gilson, M., 76, 119.

God, Thomistic conception of, 13; and Democritus, 92; and Jainism, 92; God's existence is not a necessary truth; 147; pagan conception of, 310; or the external world, 329–330; as the religious object, 340; and universal good, 345; and nature, 345.

Goethe, 224, 279–280.

Good, 176, 260, 261, 265, 280, 286.

Gospel, 312.

Guénon, René, 22.

Habits of matter, 93.

Happiness, its distinction from pleasure, 265.

Harmony, 258.

Hebraism, 309–310.

Hegel, 39–40.

Heraclitus, 7, 84–85, 92, 290.

Highest good, 268.

Holt, 121, 123, 126.

Howgate, G. W., 186.

Humanism, its place in Santayana's philosophy, 251, 272–280.

Human nature, 287.

Hume, David, 3, 14, 43–45.

Husserl, E., 19–21.

Huxley, T.H., 346.

Ideal contemplation, 131.
Ideal immortality, 335, 336.
Ideal, rational, 258; abstract and concrete, 258-259.
Ideals, spiritual, 324, 325.
Idealistic pantheism, 346.
Ideas, Plato's, 8-10, 13, 18, 55, 58, 67, 102.
Illusion, Indian doctrine of, 16.
Images and essences, 65, 66.
Immortality of the spirit, 335-336.
Indeterminate organization, 201.
Indirect knowledge of essence, 141.
Individuality of essence, 57-58.
Infinity of essence, 57.
Intellectual suicide, 36.
Intellectual intuition, 30-31.
Intent, 139.
Interest, 281-286.
Intrinsically valuable experience and instrumentally valuable experience, 165-167.
Intuition, 30, 72-74, 78, 108; intuition of essence, 132-135, 152, 153; intuition & knowledge, 137.
Materialism, \( \varepsilon \), 24-25, 49-51, 80-83, 85, 100, 101.

Materialistic pantheism, 346.

Metaphysics, its place in Santayana's philosophy, 1-5.

Moral essence, 262.

Moral ideal, 257-258, 259.

Moral judgment, 261-263.

Moral progress, 287-288.

Montague, 121.

Moore, Paul Elmer, 277.

Mulitplicity in uniformity, 199-200.

Music, barbaric and modern, 220-221; its transcendental aspect, 221; its affinity to life, 221-222.

Mysticism, 30-31, 326-328, 342-343.

Mythology, 303-304; its moral suggestion, 304-305; justification of myths, 343-344.

Naturalism, ii, iii, 6, 11, 12, 80-81.

Natural piety, 317-319.

Natural philosophy, 1-2.

Neo-realism, 121-123; and Russell, 125-127.

Objectified pleasure, 155, 182-184, 186.

Olafson, Frederick A., 31.

Paremrines, 106.

Pascal, 336.

Perry, 121, 126.

Pflieger, 306.
Phenomenological reduction, 19-20.

Piety, 314-320.

Pitkin, 121.

Possibles, 111-117.

Poetry, 222-226, 275, 276.

Platonic ideas, 8-10, 18, 67, 102.

Platonism, 6-8.

Plotinus, 61.

Pratt, J.B., 123, 128.

Prayer, 307-308.

Principle of interest, 195-196.

Principle of purity, 195-196.

Protestantism, 312-313.

Psyche, 94-96, 99; and intuition, 72-73; 137-139, 280-281.

Psychological proof of realism, 130.

Psychologism, 80-81.

Pure Being, as an essence, 60; as a universal basis, 60, 63; the Advaita notion of, 62-63; and non-Being, 63-64.

Pure consciousness, 21.

Pure spirit, 272.

Radhakrishnan, S., 338, 342.

Radicalism, defined by Husserl, 19; in Santayana's philosophy, 19.

'Rasa' theory of the Indian aestheticians, 235-237; as compared with Santayana's theory of beauty, 238-239.

Read, Sir Herbert, 213.

'Realm', 52; of essence, 52-53, 68, 74; of spirit, 95; of truth, 145.

Reason, 255, 294-295.

Relevance, 148-151.

Religion, 11, 31-32, 292, 294; rational, 295; its imaginative approach, 296-297; and poetry, 297-298; root of religion, 305; religion of humanity, 315; and spiritual experience, 343.

Representative art, 227-228.

Reproduction and evolution of matter, 93-94.

Revelation, 331-333.

Rogers, A.K., 123, 128.

Romantic sceptic, 28-29.

Royce, J., 105.

Sacrifice, 305-307.

Sāmkhya theory of evolution, 94, 97.
Santayana, G., a genius, 1; notion of metaphysics, 1-3, 5; essentialism as a variant of Platonism, 7; essentialism as distinguished from Platonic Idealism, 8-10; influence of Catholicism, 10-13; debt to medieval scholasticism, 13; debt to Russell and Moore, 15-16; essentialism and Husserl's phenomenology, 19-21; philosophy based on commonsense, 22-23; deviation from commonsense, 24-27; charge against Descartes' scepticism, 29-31; dialectic, 38-40; as a sceptic, 31-37; sense of solitude, 41; dogmatism, 47-50; notion of essence, 52-75; materialism as a necessary presupposition, 81; earlier and later materialism, 82-88; as an agnostic, 88-90; conception of matter, psyche and spirit, 91-99; distinction between essence and existence, 104-109; as a critical realist, 26, 129-131; interpretation of German idealism, 33; theory of knowledge, 132-149; psychological approach to beauty, 157-158; definition of beauty, 182-184; aesthetic elements, 192-204; on music, 220-222; on poetry, 222-225; moral tone in earlier and later works, 251-252; development of moral philosophy, 252-270; humanism, 272-280; theory of value, 280-288; Spanish heritage, 289; originality, iv, v, 291; supernature as an extension of nature, 292-293; religion as an embodiment of reason, 294-295; imaginative approach of religion, 296-297; on piety, 314; normal madness, 320-322; on spirituality, 323-326; on mysticism, 327-328; God, 329-330; ideal immortality, 335-336; as a natural idealist, 292, 347; as a mystic, 347-348.

Savery, Professor, 108.

Scepticism, 28-29, 41-47, 90; Santayana's sceptical procedure, 31-38; scepticism of Kant, 36.

Schlick, Moritz, 3.

Scholasticism, 13, 22-23.

Schopenhauer, 178-179.

Seal, B.N., 97-98.

Self-identity, as a principle of essence, 53.

Sellars, R.W., 123, 128.

Singer, Irving, 166-168.

Smith, Robertson, 306.

Souriau, E., 213.

Solipsism, 32, 33, 36.

Solitude, 25, 41.

Spain, 289.

Spencer, H., 89, 346.

Spaulding, 121.

Spirituality, 272, 275, 320, 323-326, 337, 340, 348.
Strong, C.A., 123, 128-130.
Subsistence, 8-9, 15, 18, 56-57, 59.
Spinoza, 14, 42, 55, 104, 170, 336, 346.
Substance, 82, 91-92.
Supernaturalism, 8, 292-293.
Superstition, 300-302.
Symmetry, 199.

Tagore, Rabindranath, 159, 171-172, 239-248.
Teleology, Plato's, 9.
Tensions, lateral and forward, 92.
Thomas, St., 103-104, 119.

"Timaeus", Plato's, 55.
Transcendentalism, 3, 20-21, 24, 36, 49-51, 131.
Transcendental reduction, 20-21.
Transitiveness, 130, 135, 148-149.
Tropes, or eventual essences, 66.

Truth, 144-145, its distinction from opinion, 145-146; truth is not necessary, 146-147; poetic truth and philosophical truth, 170-172; Santayana's view of the relation of truth to beauty, 173-174.

Ultimate religion, 344-345.
Ultimate scepticism, 36.
Understanding, its distinction from imagination, 296.
Unit of value, 281, 283.
Unknowable, 89-90.
Universals, 4, 7, 18, 58-59, 70, 76.
Universality of essence, 58.

Universal scepticism, as an impossibility, 45; Santayana's failure to maintain universal scepticism, 45-47.

Value, 162-164, 174-175; the source of, 281; unit of, 281, 283; interest theory of, 281-286; standard of, 284; diversity of interests, 283-284; integration of impulses or interests, 285-286; constancy in human nature, 287; degrees of harmonization or integration, 288.

Watt, 194.

Whitman, Walt, 279.
Wisdom, John, 188.

Wordsworth, W., 317-320.