PART ONE
METAPHYSICS AND EPISTEMOLOGY

Chapter I. - An Historical Introduction

I. Introduction.
II. Philosophical Traditions of Santayana's Essentialism: A. Platonism of Santayana the Poet.- B. Santayana's Essentialism as distinguished from Platonic Idealism.- C. The influence of Catholicism upon Santayana's Essentialism.- D. Santayana's debt to Medieval Scholasticism.- E. Santayana's debt to early modern philosophy.- F. Santayana's debt to B. Russell and G. E. Moore.- G. Santayana's acquaintance with Indian Philosophy.- Conclusion.

III. Santayana's Essentialism and Current Thought: A. Santayana's Essentialism and Modern Phenomenology.- B. Santayana and René Guénon.

IV. Santayana and Commonsense Philosophy.

Chapter II. - Method

I. Scepticism: A. Santayana and Descartes.- B. Santayana's Sceptical Procedure.
II. Dialectic: Santayana and Hegel.
III. Aesthetic Experience.
IV. Why does Santayana choose the Sceptical Method? - A. Personal Background.- B. Philosophical Background,- Descartes and Santayana,- Hume and Santayana.

Chapter III. - Notion of Essence

I. Genesis of the notion of essence in Santayana.
III. What Essences are not: A. Essences are not facts.- B. Essences are not images.- C. Essences... are not sensations or thoughts. — D. Essences are not forms. — E. Essence is not possible being. — F. Essences are not the constituents of things. — G. Essences are not abstractions.

Chapter IV. — Essence and Existence

I. Materialism: A. Materialism: Naturalism. — B. Materialism as a necessary presupposition. — C. Matter and Substance are interchangeable. — D. Santayana's materialism in his earlier and later works, — Santayana and Democritus, — Santayana, Modern Science and Heraclitus. — E. Consistency between earlier and later phases of Santayana's materialism.

II. Is Santayana an agnostic?

III. Scepticism and Animal Faith.

V. Santayana and Dialectical Materialism.

Chapter V. — Epistemology

II. Santayana's place in the critical realist movement.

III. Santayana's Theory of Knowledge: A. Intuition is not knowledge. — B. Intuition of Essence and knowledge of Existence. — C. Origin of PART TWO

AESTHETICS

Chapter VI. - The Sense of Beauty

I. Introduction.
II. The Sense of Beauty: A. The Theory of Beauty: 'Criticism' and 'Aesthetics'.
B. Emotional consciousness is necessary for the perception of value.
C. Aesthetic experience and aesthetic value,
D. Is aesthetic experience true or false? - Keats, Bergson, Rabindranath and Santayana.
E. Moral, Aesthetic and Intellectual Judgments.
F. Aesthetic pleasure is not physical pleasure.
G. Is disinterestedness the differentia of aesthetic pleasure? - Santayana, Kant and Schopenhauer.
H. Is universality the differentia of aesthetic pleasure? - Santayana, Kant and Lotze.
I. Aesthetic experience as objectification of pleasure.
III. Criticism.

Chapter VII. - Aesthetic Elements

I. Introduction.
II. Sensuous Element: A. The basic material for the sense of beauty.
B. Beauty rests on definite imagination and pleasant experience.
C. Conflict of aesthetic principles.
D. The aesthetic effect of colour.
E. Importance of sensuous beauty.
III. Formal Element: A. Form as "the unity of a manifold".
B. Symmetry and multiplicity in uniformity.
C. Indeterminate, discursive and determinate organization.
IV. The element of Expression.
V. Criticism.
Chapter VIII. - The Theory of Art

I. Introduction.
II. The Nature of Art: A. Art is purposive.
   B. Art is practical.
   - The disadvantage of servile art,
   - Harmony between servile and fine arts.
IV. Fine Art: A. Music: Barbaric and modern music
   - The transcendental aspect of music
   - Its affinity to life.
   B. Poetry:
      - Three requirements of great poetry
      - Is rational poetry a fine art?
      - Great poetry vs. greatest poetry
      - Santayana's final statement of poetry
      - Answer to Santayana's statement.
V. Plastic Art: A. Constructive art
   - cases where plastic construction faces obstruction.
   B. Representative art.
VI. Critical Review.

Chapter IX. - Santayana and the Indian View of Beauty and Art

I. Introduction.
II. Santayana's aesthetics and Indian aesthetics of the past
   - The theory of Rasa.
III. The aesthetical theory of Rabindranath Tagore.
IV. Rabindranath and Santayana.

PART THREE
ETHICS AND RELIGION

Chapter X. - Moral Philosophy and Theory of Value

I. Introduction.
II. Development of Santayana's moral philosophy:
   A. Pre-rational morality
   - The Cynics, the Stoics, Kant and Santayana.
   B. Rational morality
   - Rational morality and art
   - The ideal to be followed in our rational life
   - Santayana and Emerson
   - Moral judgment
   - Santayana's naturalistic ethics
   - Santayana's moral philosophy and hedonism.
   C. Post-rational morality
   - The life of reason and the life of spirit.
   - D. Critical Review.
III. Humanism in Santayana's moral philosophy.
IV. Santayana's theory of value.
V. Conclusion
Chapter XI. - Theory of Religion

II. Santayana's Religious Theory: A. Religion as an embodiment of reason.
   B. Imaginative approach of religion.
   C. Religion and Poetry.

D. Validity of Religion:
   (i) Superstition - Rational element in superstition.
   Error of superstitious minds.
   (ii) Mythology - Moral suggestion of mythology.
   (iii) Sacrifice.
   (iv) Prayer.
   E. The Major Religions:
      (i) The Hebrew Religion;
      (ii) The Christian Religion:
         a. Catholicism or Pagan Christianity,
         b. Barbarised Christianity,
         c. Protestantism or the Teutonic religion.
      F. Phases of Religion:
         (i) Piety - Santayana and Comte - Cosmic piety - Santayana and William Wordsworth;
         (ii) Spirituality - 'Normal Madness' - "Ideals";
         (iii) Mysticism.

Chapter XII. - A Critique of Santayana's Religious Theory

I. God or the External World.

II. Place of Revelation in Santayana.

III. Is Matter the only existent Reality?

IV. Santayana's View of Immortality.

V. Santayana's theory of Spirituality vs. our theory of the same.

VI. Santayana's religious standpoint.

Bibliography

Index