REFERENCES

Adler NE et al, Socio Economic Inequalities in Health: No Easy Solution. JAMA 1993; 269: 3140 – 45.

Ahmed KM et al. Mechanism of Arsenic Related to Ground Water: Geochemical and Mineralogical Evidence. This paper was presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.

Alam MK, Probable provenances of arsenic in the rocks, sediments and ground water in Bangladesh and the surrounding areas. This paper was presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.

Andre Prost et al. Rationales for Choice in Public Health: The Role of Epidemiology, Disease Control Priorities in Developing Countries. Ed by Dean T Jamison, Ox Med Pub 1993; 741-46, 87, 111.

Arnold David. Colonizing The Body – State Medicine and Epidemic Disease in Nineteenth Century India. OUP 1993; 159-239.

Banerji D. Challenges to Social Sciences in Formulating Alternative Health Services in India, Chapter 16, Medical Care: Reading in Medical Sociology Lal S K et al. Jainsons Publication 1987. 221-51.

Banerji D. Combating AIDS As A Public Health Problem In India, VHAI & NFHPP 1992. 9-11.

Barry B. Arsenic in water brings slow death to millions in Bangladesh, Times of India, 16th Nov 1998, 13.

Bhattacharya P et al. Genesis of arseniferous groundwater in the alluvial aquifers of Bengal Delta plains and strategies for low cost remediation. This paper was presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.

Chakraborty D et al. Ground water Arsenic Calamity in eight districts of West Bengal, India. This paper was presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.

Chatterjee Biswajit. Poverty in West Bengal – What Have We Learnt? EPW Nov 211998; 3003-3014.

Chien-Jen Chen. Chronic Health effects of ingested inorganic arsenic in Taiwan. This paper was presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.

Csanady M, et al. Adverse effects of drinking water related arsenic exposure on some pregnancy outcomes in Karcag, Hungary. This paper was presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.

Deborah Kaplan, Director, World Institute on Disability. 2002 Email: dkaplan@wid.org (downloaded from Website)

Dipankar Das et al. Exposure to Arsenic in Infants via breast milk from the women exposed to arsenic contaminated water in West Bengal, India. Paper presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.

Evans S et al. Medicinal arsenic, keratosis and bladder cancer. This paper was presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.

Grobe JW. Vinedressers with late lesions due to arsenic intoxication. This paper was presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.

Guha Majumdar DN et al. Clinical manifestation of Chronic Arsenic Toxicity: It's natural history and therapy: Experience of study in West Bengal, India. This paper was presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.

Hotta N. Some characteristic aspects in symptomatology among different endemic areas of arsenicism. This paper was presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.

Hung-Yi Chion et al. Arsenic and health effects: five year follow up study among 8102 residents in a newly identified arsenicosis endemic area in Taiwan. This paper was presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.

Imrana Qadeer, Relevance of Epidemiological Methods for pollution impact studies, CSMCH / SSS /JNU.

Kosnett MJ. Clinical treatment of chronic arsenic intoxication. This paper was presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.

Lai Chen See et al. Determinants of various types of cataract among residents in a arsenicosis – endemic area of Taiwan. This paper was presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.

Lucian Leape et al. JAMA 1994; Dec 21: 1851-57

Luo Zhen Dong et al. High Arsenic Concentration in subterranean water of inner Mongolia, China: Distribution, characteristics and health effects. This paper was presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.

Maidul Islam AZM et al. Clinical Manifestation of Chronic Arsenic Toxicity in Bangladesh – A 250 case study. This paper was presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.

Mayer DR et al. Serum Arsenic and Selenium Concentrations in Hemodialysis Patients: Correlations to Associated Diseases from Trace and Toxic elements in Nutrition and Health, Edited by M Abdulla et al, Jamia Hamdard, New Delhi, Wiley Eastern Limited.

Mervyn Susser et al. Choosing a Future for Epidemiology: II. From Black Box to Chinese Box and Eco-Epidemiology. AJPH 1996; 86: 674-77.

Nagi SZ. An Epidemiology of disability among adults in the US. Milbank Mem Q 1976; 54: 467-543.

Nordstrom DK. Geochemistry of arsenic pyrite connection and Biogeochemical processes leading to arsenic mobility in natural waters. This paper was presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.

Oxford English Dictionary (Indian Edition) OUP.

Patnaik Utsa. Export oriented agriculture and food security in developing countries and India. EPW special number Sept 1996; 2429 – 2449.

Rahman M et al. Diabetes Mellitus and arsenic exposure – results of three epidemiological studies. This paper was presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.

Rahman MK et al. Effect of Arsenicosis on Neurotransmitters – mediating Enzyme – Dopamine – B –Hydroxylase in the serum of Arsenic contaminated patients of Bangladesh. This paper was presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.

Rahman M et al. Diabetic Mellitus and arsenic exposure - results of three epidemiological studies. This paper was presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.

Rao KV. Leprosy in Rural India; Manak Publication 1992: PP 331-369, 381-406.

Ren Xian Yun, Peripheral vision affected by high levels of arsenic in drinking water. This paper was presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.

Roy S et al. Ground Arsenic Contamination and sufferings of people in Bangladesh may be the biggest Arsenic calamity in the world. This paper was presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.

Roy Choudhury T et al. Borehole sediment analysis probable source and mechanism of arsenic release to groundwater in affected districts of West Bengal, India. This paper was presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.

Saha KC. Diagnosis of Arsenicosis. This paper was presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.

Sathyamala C. Reproductive Health – A Public Health perspective. EPW 33 (41); 43-57.

Shahidullah M, Geohydrochemical source of arsenic contamination in Bangladesh. This paper was presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.

Shoko Oshikawa et al. A 10-year follow up of subjects with arsenical skin lesions in Southern Thailand. This paper was presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.

Sivaraman S. Tuberculosis in India – The Prospect. Ind J TB 1982. 29; 71.

Smith AH et al. The significance of arsenic in drinking water: Carcinogenicity and human health. This paper was presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.

Webster’s Ninth New Collegiate Dictionary, Merriam Webster Inc. USA, 1988, Ed by Frederic C Mish.

Yu-Mei Hsueh et al. The study on the association among arsenic induced skin cancer and cardiovascular disease and serum micronutrients and arsenic methylation capacity. This paper was presented in International Seminar on Arsenic Poisoning held in Bangladesh, Feb 1998.