Acknowledgements

In acknowledging the help I have received from others in the research work presented here, I must begin by recording that my greatest debt is to my supervisor Dr. J. K. Das, Associate Professor, Department of Law, University of Calcutta, who inspired me to work in this area. Dr. Das proposed, during the early stages of work, organic modification of the scope of enquiry and frame work of the work. During the time of my research work I visited New Delhi for collection of material and consult libraries. I find the libraries of the Indian Law Institute and Indian Society of International Law are modern and updated. I express my sincere thanks to library staffs of both libraries for their cooperation. I am also thankful to the library staffs of the Library of the Institute of Constitutional and Parliamentary Studies, New Delhi. While I was working at the National Library, Kolkata for collection of historical documents as well as study material on my topic of research I acquired an excellent experience of working at a systematic library. In this connection I express my thanks to all library staffs of the National Library, Kolkata. It is my great pleasure to acknowledge the helps I received during the time of my research from the library staffs of the Law Library and Central Library of the University of Calcutta. I would also like to convey my thanks to all teachers of the Department of Law, University of Calcutta. I am highly indebted to my late father Jiban Chandra Chakraborty and mother Mrs. Niyati Chakraborty for their constant support and inspiration to obtain this Ph. D. Degree in law.
