LIST OF TABLES

Table-1: General Characteristics of the Sample in terms of Gender, Age, Marital Status, Education, Employment Status, Family size and Income.

Table-2: Sizes (No. and percentages) of the Highly, Moderately, Poorly Satisfied Groups and the Means, Standard deviations of their Life Satisfaction Scale Scores.

Table-3: Factor Loadings of the three Extracted Factors.

Table-4: Factor Component-wise Life Satisfaction Scores with high, moderate and poor perceived Quality of Life.

Table-5: Groupwise Distribution of Mean Item-scores, Standard Deviations of the three Factors.

Table-6: Comparison Between Different Groups - Highly, Moderately and Poorly Satisfied Groups in terms of the Three Factors Indicating Meaningfulness of their Life Satisfaction.

Table-7: Multiple Regression of Satisfaction with Life in General on Satisfaction with Specific Domains of Life.

Table-8: Relationship between Age Group and Perceived Quality of Life.

Table-9: Relationship between Gender and Perceived Quality of Life.

Table-10: Relationship between Socio-Economic Scale and Perceived Quality of Life.
Table-11: Relationship between Respondents' Material Possessions and Perceived Quality of Life in Different Age-Groups.

Table-12: Relationship between Respondents' Material Possessions and Perceived Quality of Life in Different Genders.

Table-13: Relationship between Self-Concept and Perceived Quality of Life.

Table-14: Relationship between Material Possessions and Respondents' Self-concept.

Table-15: Relationship between Buying Motives and Self-concept.

Table-16: Importance attached to various Buying Motives by Highly, Moderately and Poorly Satisfied Group on Life Satisfaction.

Table-17: Distribution of Factor Loadings of Select Buying Motives.

Table-18 Consumer Durable-Percentage Distribution of Different Products owned by the Respondents.

Table-19 Consumer Durable-Percentage Distribution of Different Products Aspired by the Respondents.
LIST OF FIGURES

Figure 1  Diagram indicating gender, marital status, education, employment status of the selected respondents.

Figure 2  Diagram indicating factor profile of the highly, moderately and poorly satisfied groups of people.

Figure 3  Diagram showing the conceptual framework of overall life satisfaction with different domains of life.

Figure 4  Diagram displaying how Perceived Quality of Life varies over age-groups.

Figure 5  Diagram showing the Perceived Quality of Life for male and female respondents.

Figure 6  Diagram showing the importance attached to various buying motives by highly, moderately and poorly satisfied group of respondents.