Preface

I have been fortunate to have Professor Soumitra De, Department of Political Science, North Bengal University as my supervisor who never imposed his decisions on me and always allowed me to be on my own. I express my heartfelt gratitude to him for teaching me most of what I know about research work today and for all of the time and effort he has spent not only on this research work, but in shaping my outlook as a scholar. His profound knowledge and expertise have been invaluable for my present work. I thank him for his understanding and support in my testing time and indeed in getting me on to the doctoral programme in the first place. I hope someday to be as valuable as an advisor to someone as he has been to me.

My gratitude knows no bound to Professor Sameer Kumar Das, Vice Chancellor, North Bengal University for trusting on my capabilities since I was his student in Post Graduate in Calcutta University. It was in fact because of his encouragement that I decided to pursue a Ph. D program. I thank him for constantly pushing me to submit my thesis.

I am deeply thankful to Mr. Pawan Chamling, the Chief Minister of Sikkim. Without him, I would not have been where I am today. I am extremely grateful to Mr. Nar Bahadur Bhandari, Ex Chief Minister of Sikkim for helping me unconditionally by providing rare documents and facts to realize my thesis. I thank him for giving his invaluable time to answer my queries for four long years and letting me use his library.

I am sincerely grateful to Mr. B.B. Gurung, Ex Chief Minister, Mr. C.D. Rai, retired Bureaucrat and Mr. M. M. Rasaily for helping me clarify my confusions about pre-merger era of which they were a part. The rare documents, journals, magazines, materials and their experiences and observations they provided were of immense value to enrich my work. I shall always remain indebted to Mr. Sonam Wangdi, retired Chief Secretary whose wide knowledge and rich collection of documents have been of great value to me.

I thank Mr. Padam Bahadur Chettri, President, Sikkim State Unit, BJP, Mr. A.D. Subba, President, Himali Rajya Parishad Party, Mr. Biraj Adhikari, President, Sikkim National People’s Party, Mr. Pal Man Subba, Ex M.P. Lok Sabha, Mr. Nakul Das Rai, Ex M.P., Lok Sabha, P.T. Gyamtso, Ex M.P. Rajya Sabha, Mr. T.T. Bhutia, Ex- Minister, and Convener, Sikkim Bhutia Lepcha Apex Committee, Mr. Sonam Dupden, Ex-Minister, Mr. K. N. Upreti, Ex-Minister Mr. Pradeep Yonzon, Ex-MLA, for sparing their invaluable time for me and providing me support and suggestions in collecting primary information.
I shall also put on record the names of members of different NGOs and Social Organisations: Ms. Kipu Lepcha, Mr. Dawa Tshering Lepcha, Mr. Bharat Basnett, Mr. Navin Kiran Pradhan, T.T. Sherpa, Buddha Tamang, who helped me take a closer view of different segments of Sikkimese society and helped me understand Sikkimese society better.

I shall remain deeply indebted to all the respondents from all four districts of Sikkim who consented to be interviewed and shared their thoughts, perception and vision with me. This thesis simply could not have been completed without them. In this connection, I sincerely thank Norden Sherpa (Daju) for walking long hours on foot in the dense, sloppy cardamom fields to help me in my field survey. Laxmi Daju, Yenden Sherpa, Sonam Rinchen Sherpa and Simon Gurung deserves special thanks for their unconditional assistance in my field survey in different areas of Sikkim.

I must not forget to mention here the cooperation extended by Dr. G.P. Dahal, Editor Debates, Sikkim Legislative Assembly for letting me use the Assembly Library during my entire research work. His encouragement and suggestions made things lighter during those frustrating phase of research. Mrs. Nima Lamu Bhutia, Library In-charge, Sikkim Legislative Assembly deserves special thanks for helping me selflessly to find rare books and documents in the Library. Without her support things would have been difficult.
Special thanks is also due for the staff and officials of Community Library, Gangtok and Namchi, the Information and Public Relations Office, Gangtok, the Election Commission Office, Gangtok, Department of Law, Gangtok, Rural Management and Development Department, Gangtok, and my sincere thanks to Block Development Officers, Councilors, Zilla Panchayats and Gram Panchayats of different districts of Sikkim for their cooperation.

I extend my sincere thanks to the staff and officials of Calcutta University Central Library, Presidency University Library, Alipur Campus Library, Calcutta University, National Library, Kolkata, American Library, Kolkata and British Council Library, Kolkata.

I cannot remain without thanking Shah Sir, my Political Science teacher in High School for teaching me the basics of the subject; it is because of his way of teaching, efforts and endurance I opted Political Science for higher studies. I would also like to extend my warm thanks to Mr. D.R. Chhetri, Mr. Binay Pradhan, Mr. Manoj Kr. Basnett, Mr. Wangchuk Lepcha and Mr. Anjan Dey (NBU) for helping me unconditionally in different ways to complete my thesis.

Mr. Binod Rai, MLA, Government of Sikkim deserves special place for being there to help me whenever I approached him. Even in his tight schedule he never once declined my request and was ever ready to help me in all possible ways.

One of the most gratifying aspects of this research work is that it has introduced me to many extraordinarily helpful people. I have incurred many debts of gratitude from them in the preparation of this work that I cannot formally acknowledge here. I would like to stress here that the ultimate responsibility of any conclusions or errors in this work remains mine alone.

Lastly, my parents as ever have offered me unflagging support whose confidence in me is a constant source of reassurance. At the worst of the times they were my inspiration. Nothing would have been possible without their extraordinary amount of patience, love and care. I apologize for being so obsessed with my work that I deprived them of lot of quality time. I am also indebted to Mr. Manoj Gupta (MJ) for more reasons than many. He has supported me throughout my research work while reminding me of the lighter side of things in my academic burdens. Things would have been much tougher without his support.
