ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It is said that, anyone who does not appreciate people’s efforts will never be thanked; thus, I feel it should be my duty to thank each and every person who stood by me and offered me a helping hand till I completed my research work. First & foremost, my heart raises gratitude to Almighty Allah for all his blessings showered upon me throughout my life. Then, I express my profound gratitude and indebtedness to my supervisor Professor D. M. Khandare, the former Director of the school of Commerce and Management Sciences, SRTM University for his dexterous guidance, inspiring encouragement and boundless support. He has been a father before being guide for me all the time; he supported and stood by me all the time. I am most grateful to Dr. V. Rengarajan, an international microfinance consultant for his whole-hearted co-operation and assistance provided to me all the time without whom my research work would not have been completed successfully. His unconditional support, elevating encouragement, patience, and truthful consideration have not only guided me all the way through the completion of my work, but also have alleviated the burden of some life challenges that I have faced at times of distress and adversity. I also would like to thank Dr. V. N. Laturkar, the Director, and Dean of the School of Commerce and Management Sciences in SRTM University for being always there for me whenever needed and for her invariable encouragement, assistance, and friendly spirit she has always demonstrated not just to me but also to everyone in the school.

I am also incredibly grateful to the government of Yemen represented by the Ministry of Higher Education & Scientific Research for supporting me financially with postgraduate scholarship. I am extremely indebted to Dr. Rasheed Abolohoom and Dr. Sultan Alhalmi for sparing their valuable time with me and for their continuous encouragement and support during the period of my research and before. I further express my genuine thanks to Dr. Fahmi Alqubati and to the analyst Ameen Dabwan for rendering services at various stages of data collection, compilation, analysis, and interpretation of my research. I should not also forget to

I owe a debt of gratitude to Mr. Faiz Alwajeih, Mr. Ali Abutaleb, Mr. Mohammed Atiah, Waleed Almikhalfy and Ali Meshwar for their valuable advice and suggestions and making available to me the relevant details of Yemen’s microfinance programs. I am deeply grateful to Dr. Azhuraddin in Aurangabad for his timely assistance and co-operation during the period of my study. Thanks are also due to the Library Staff in SRTM University for providing the required and necessary reading materials. My earnest appreciation also goes to Dr. Mohammed Alhiba, Dr. Manswer Alahdal, Dr. Faiz Al-gobaei, Dr. Abdulrahman Alemad, Dr. Ibrahim Mahfuath, Dr. Abdulelah Bazi, and Dr. Khalil Alkhadem for bringing out this thesis in this present form. I am also thankful to my beloved parents, brothers, sisters, and relatives for their constant encouragement and spiritual support for accomplishing this research work. Further, I am overwhelmingly grateful to my wife, Napila Mohammed Yagout, for her inspiration and support throughout my endeavor, and my kid Monsif for their boundless love. My sincere gratitude is due also to all others who directly or indirectly aided me in accomplishing this research study competently.

My heartiest thanks are due to ‘ALFA Computers & Multiservices, Sundar Nagar, Nanded’ for their excellent computer work.

Most sincerely, I thank them, one and all. Last but not the least, I am forever thankful to all those who have directly or indirectly helped and supported me in my research work.
