Acknowledgements

I am grateful to Prof. Rajeev Bhargava for enabling me to think on my own, being patient with my incoherent formulations, open to discussions, provoking critical lines of thought, nudging me in the right direction – and all this without imposing anything on me.

I would like to thank the staff of the libraries of the Indian Law Institute, Jawaharlal Nehru University and the Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.

I am grateful to Valson Thampu and Nivedita Menon. Discussions with them helped clarify a lot of things. Thanks to Anand who helped me with the chapter on India’s judiciary.

Thanks is due to all my friends who saw me through the thesis who helped a lot of ideas take shape through stimulating discussions, and more importantly were always around. I would particularly like to thank the following people – Ranu, for being patient with the incoherence of the initial drafts and generous with her suggestions, Anjali, who provided life saving breaks as well as took it on herself to steer me back to the thesis, Ritu, who shared with me the ups and downs of thesis writing, Neema, who discussed issues in the thesis with a passion that I found difficult to match, Sunalini, who heard my ideas in their nascent stage with an open mind, Janaki and Kavitha, who were there through the last crucial stages and gave of themselves unstintingly.
