ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

First of all I must mention that this work involved substantial risk during the field work in Assam and Mizoram with intermittent violence. And this would not have seen the light of the day without constant encouragement of my revered supervisor who constantly encouraged me to complete the work after I took a break from my studies. Even after I took a break she kept inquiring about the progress in the work and in a way making me realize that this is equally important as lot of hard work and risk has gone into it and hence it must be submitted. This is her sheer conviction that it is more than worth publishing that inspired me to complete it.

Onto the acknowledgments: I would like to thank my parents for providing me with the opportunity to be where I am. Inspite of several difficulties they always motivated me to complete this work. Without them, none of this would have been even possible. They have always been my biggest critics as well as motivation. I would also like to thank my friends Kailash K K, Prashant Pastore, Guru Senthil and Basant who have always more faith and conviction in my abilities than myself. Their constant reminding that my Ph D is getting late, “let’s us know what help do you need” and sometime scoldings rendered the required energy to keep the work going on. They have been my biggest critics throughout my entire personal life and professional career. Their encouragement, input and constructive criticism have been priceless. An extra special thanks goes to Professor Niraja Gopal Jayal whose mere enquiry about the work motivated me to complete it.

I would like to thank all the library staff of my University (JNU), The North Eastern Hill University and Guwahati University. The staffs at Teen Murthy Library and Indian Institute of Public Administration were also of great help in allowing me to work and accepting my request of arranging few books. The biggest help came from some of my friends who reside in North East in getting me in touch with Bodo and Mizo leaders and keeping me at their home. The first field visits were difficult and disappointing as they were not willing to talk and discuss as every stranger was looked with suspicion and here my friends' contacts proved immensely helpful.
Several people went through the draft of this work like R K Changmai, Navjyoti, Dr. M C Sharma and made valuable suggestion in improving the draft at every stage. A very big thanks to all of them.

Finally, thanks to all the Bodo and Mizo leaders and bureaucrats whose names are not mentioned on their request for talking freely after the initial doubts were cleared and encouraging me by saying that this is a topic worth working hard as there is little primary data available. A very big thanks to all of them.

"Let go of your attachment to being right, and suddenly your mind is more open. You're able to benefit from the unique viewpoints of others, without being crippled by your own judgment". Ralph Marston