Acknowledgements

I have accumulated a long list of debts while working on this thesis. My supervisor Prof. Neeladri Bhattacharya has shaped this work in two crucial ways. In the initial stages he urged me to read and reflect widely. Later on he painstakingly went through my drafts, making constructive comments and honing my power of expression.

My uncle Dr. Abhijit Mukherjee (Department of History, R.K. M. Residential College, Narendrapur) has, over the last eleven years, not only taught me this subject but also helped me to find a new meaning in life.

I have benefitted from discussions with Prof. Majid H. Siddiqi, Dr. Kunal Chakraborty and Prof. Sabyasachi Bhattacharya of CHS, JNU.

This thesis would definitely have been longer in the making had it not been for the fellowship and excellent facilities that National Institute of Science Technology and Development Studies (NISTADS) provided me for over one and half years. I wish to thank DR. V.V. Krishna in helping to obtain the fellowship. While at NISTADS I had many occasions to discuss my work with Dhruv Raina and Dr. S. Irfan Habib, the influence of which can be seen in this work. Dr. Deepak Kumar (now in JNU) has supported me, as ever, in times of need and despair.

One long discussion that I had with Shivo Viswanathan (CSDS) helped me to discover the possibilities of this work. Ifti (Iftekhar Ahmad, History Department, M.S. University of Baroda) emboldened me to be imaginative and yet forthright.

This thesis took shape in the various libraries like the National Library, libraries of the Asiatic Society, Geological Survey of India (all in Calcutta), H.M. Library of M.S. University (Baroda), Jawaharlal Nehru University, Nehru Memorial, NISTADS, Publication and Information Directorate (CSIR), National Archives (all in Delhi). I thank the staff of all these institutions who were helpful and considerate. I also wish to thank Mrs. Shakuntala Hans and Anil Jasbir & Ashok of M/s. A.P. Computers for doing a fine job of typing and photocopying the thesis. I am grateful to my aunt Dr. Sujata Mukherjee (Dept. of History, Rabindra Bharati University), and to Srimoy, Sushobhan and others for locating some important documents for me. in Calcutta. A special thanks to Malvika Kasturi for bringing some coherence to some of my chapters by her editing.

I had the privilege of being with friends like Gaurav, Uday, Praveen, Srimali, Kaushik, Tejomoy, Shalini, Anando, Manoharan, Chandranna, Siddeji, Shaji, and my brother-in-law, Biswanath who extended their help and support whenever I needed. Tanuja has shared my worries and frustrations.

My parents and sister encouraged me always. My parents-in-law helped me with the warmth of a home in Baroda during my stay there.

Nandini has lived this work, rescuing me from my depressions and encouraging me to dream. Of the many reasons why I owe this work to her, not the least is the fact that she is the only person who knows why and how I did it.

Pratik Chakrabarti