ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It gives me a great pleasure to recall and acknowledge the valuable helps I received from many peoples in the preparation of this thesis.

Firstly thanks are due to Professor R.K. Mutatkar, Head, Department of Anthropology, University of Poona, for his kind acceptance me as his student, at the time when there was no recognized guide in biological anthropology at the department and then, he kindly transferred me under DR. B.V. Bhanu.

I am grateful to DR. B.V. Bhanu, my "Guru" in Indian tradition, for fruitful discussions and guidance, useful comments, criticisms and valuable suggestions at various stages of this work; without his kind guidance and help I could never have finished this work.

I am also grateful to DR. K.C. Malhotra, Indian Statistical Institute, Calcutta, who gave me the vision, initiated me into the intricacies of the subject and guided me in every step.

As an Iranian Scholar I was awarded a Scholarship from the Ministry of Science and Higher Education, Iran, for about two years, for which I am grateful to the authorities of the Ministry.
For fieldwork I was also awarded funds from Centre for Iran Anthropology, Tehran, for which I am grateful to DR. M. Khalighi, then Director General and DR. A. Askari Khanekhah, Deputy Director of the Centre.

The blood was collected and analyzed with the help of the people of the School Hygienic and welfare Organization of the Hormozgan Province, for which I am grateful to all of them.

During my field-work all over the Hormozgan Province I have got the helps from the teachers and students of the Educational Organization of the Hormozgan Province, for which I am grateful to MR. M.A. Kamali, then Deputy Director of the Organization.

Helps was sought from MR. N. Fekri for preparation of the figures and MR. P.P. Majumdar, for his kind statistical guidance, for which I am grateful to them.

I wish to record my heart-felt thanks to DR. P.M. Fulmali, B.J. Medical College, Pune and MR. S. Goodarzi, Department of Sociology, University of Poona for their encouragement in my endeavour.

As a token of my respects and regards, I dedicate this thesis to Late Professor Irawati Karve and Harold Cummins whose works have been a continuous source of inspiration.

M. SHARIF KAMALI
JULY 1979
PUNE.