ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I sincerely thank Professor G.P. Deshpande for guiding me in my research. I specially value my five years of association with him as a student for not only enriching my inquiries in Chinese Studies but also for broadening the fringes of my critical thinking.

I also acknowledge with gratitude the cooperation extended to my research by the faculty members and staff of the Centre for East Asian Studies, particularly documentation officer Ms. Kamlesh Jain.

I thankfully acknowledge the assistance rendered by the staff members of the libraries of Jawaharlal Nehru University, Department of Chinese and Japanese Studies of the University of Delhi, Nehru Memorial Museum Library, Institute of Defence Studies and Analysis and Institute of Chinese Studies. I have obtained most of the primary source materials for Chapter V from Hong Kong and I am grateful to the librarians of Contemporary China Research Centre at the Chinese University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong University of Science and Technology and the University of Hong Kong. I record my special gratitude to Ms Joyce at the Human Rights Watch (Asia) Hong Kong office for furnishing me with the latest reports on China and Mario at the Documentation for Action Group in Asia, Hong Kong for providing me materials related to alternative movements in China. Thanks are also due to the library staff of the People's University and National Library of China, Beijing.

Many of my friends and colleagues have helped me in the work of this thesis through their encouragement, critical discussion and editorial assistance. In this regard I am particularly grateful to Percy Fernande, K. Sabarinath, G. Anil, P. K. Sanil Kumar, Rona Wilson, Pramod C. R. and Krishnakumar.

I must mention with gratitude the names of all those who unstinctly helped me during my field visit to China. I am particularly indebted to Babu Joseph in Hong Kong University of Science and Technology, Srikanth Kondappally, Sujatha, Avijith Banerjee and Ralph Randy Micco in Beijing Language and Cultural University and Zafar in Beijing University. Likewise I am most grateful to Mathews George Chunakkara with the Christian Conference of Asia, Hong Kong, and Hari in Indian High Commission, Hong Kong. In making this dissertation in print I record my thanks to Mr. T. M. Varghese who typed my manuscript with remarkable proficiency. Most importantly I should like to thank very specially my parents Shri T.K. Gopalan, and Smt. Janaki Gopalan, my brother Belraj and Sisters Rani Surendran and Sudha Ravindranath for their unqualified support, constant encouragements and patience during my long years of study in Jawaharlal Nehru University.
