"At times our own light goes out and is rekindled by a spark from another person. Each of us has a cause to think with deep gratitude of those who have lighted the flame within us."

For me this flame has been lighted by many people. My deepest gratitude goes to my guide and mentor Dr. Veena Poonacha, the former Director of the Research Centre for Women’s studies (RCWS) at SNDT Women’s University, Mumbai. It is only due to her that I got drawn into the discipline of Women’s Studies. While pursuing my Ph. D she not only guided me in my work but also welcomed me at her home where she gave me her time, attention and space which helped me to crystallize ideas for the thesis. Her home in Coorg and Mumbai literally became my second home, here at length we would discuss certain concepts, make drafts, revise them, all of which helped me to shape and complete the thesis. I am simply blessed to have her as my guide for what she has given me is truly invaluable.

This thesis would not have been complete without the full support and cooperation extended by the senior management as well as the staff of Mahila Arthik Vikas Mahamandal (MAVIM). I would particularly like to thank Kusum Balasaraf (Managing Director) Mr Gamare (Programme Manager). Also, Mr Kahate (DCO Aurangabad), Mr Bhadane (DCO Nandurbar), Mr Ganveer (DCO Thane), Dr Wankhede (DCO Yavatmal), Mr Bhadule (DCO, Nanded) for taking interest in my study and for providing their valuable inputs wherever required and also for helping me with my travel logistics while I was on the field. I am also thankful for the staff at the district offices who painstakingly accompanied me in the remote areas to ensure my safety especially Mrs Tare (Yavatmal), Mrs Nemane (ADCO Nanded), Mrs Jawanjal and Mrs Bhurewar both from Aurangabad and Mr Dhole (Livelihood officer, Nandurbar). I am grateful to Monali and Kiranjeetkaur for their valuable inputs in my study. I have received guidance on number of occasions from the former Director of MAVIM, Dr. Thanksy Thekkekara and am thankful to her as she has taken the time to explain the history of MAVIM and its growth. I am equally thankful to the sahyoginis who have opened their hearts and given me an opportunity to peek into their lives. Ample and more material in terms of reports, handbooks, pamphlets, training manuals have been given by the district offices of MAVIM for which I am indebted.

The organisations that I am indeed grateful to are Vandana Foundation (a Sec 25 company giving micro loans to people living in urban slums) Swasti (a MFI NBFC operating in Mumbai) and Mann Deshi Bank (which is a rural bank set up for and by rural women). I have to thank Saumya Roy (Co-founder of Vandana Foundation) for showing me the operations and disbursements of micro loans. Am equally thankful to Sushma Shendge, Chief Financial Officer of Mann Deshi for explaining the operations of the bank as well as Shankar (Operations Head at Swasti ) for explaining the working of a NBFC. Although these institutions have not been directly included in the thesis, they gave a thorough understanding of the financial world and different models operating which helped to clear doubts and brought more clarity on the subject of microfinance.
The research would not have been complete without the assistance received from the Documentation Centre at RCWS (SNDT University), SNDT Main Library (Churchgate), J N Library (Kalina Campus Mumbai University) and Sir Dorabji Tata Memorial Library (TISS, Mumbai).

I am indeed grateful to Prof. Archana Bhatnagar, Director In-charge of RCWS for she has ensured that all the internal approvals were in order for me to proceed with my thesis. She has time and again encouraged me to complete my thesis on time and provided guidance as required. I am also thankful to Prof. Vibhuti Patel (Head Department of Economics, SNDT University) who enabled me to understand the concept of ‘Women and Work’ through her various lectures at RCWS. Got to thank Dr. Khevana Desai (Assistant Professor, Department of Sociology, Mithibai College). Similarly am also thankful to Dr. Mira Desai (University Department of Extension Education, SNDT University) who has constantly given valuable suggestions regarding the research. Words fail to express the deep sense of respect for Dr. Neera Desai one of the pioneers of Women Studies. Her writings and critical questioning of development policies have profoundly influenced me and have left a deep imprint on my thoughts and work. I wish, I had the opportunity to meet the sterling woman while she was alive.

The entire staff at RCWS has been extremely co-operative and it always felt like an extended family. I am indebted to Vatsala, Parul of RCWS for they were sometimes my punching bags and sometimes they were my anchors. I am also thankful to Supriya, Namrata, Shraddha (administrative staff), Mahesh, Arun, Shweta and Lakshmi (Support staff) and most importantly the librarians at RCWS, Sapna and Prafulla. Usha Lalwani of RCWS is one more person that I am grateful for the many intellectual conversations that made me think and rethink of the different perspective on simple things. I have all the reason to express my gratitude for the amazing students that I got the opportunity to teach for I believe that I learnt from them a lot more than they did. They have helped me to broaden my perspectives.

I am indebted towards my parents (Mohana and Prakash Kulkarni) for instilling the value systems that I am proud of. I am also greatly indebted to my in-laws (Bharati and Ashok Desai) for being the strong support system, they ensured that I was kept free from the regular household affairs and they also lovingly took care of my daughter. My daughter Ekaa has indeed been a great source of inspiration for she would innocently ask me “Aai (mom) so after you finish this work will you use ‘Dr’ ahead of your name?” This question would constantly remind me of the enormous task at hand.

Finally I have to thank my husband Ashish, for being the strongest pillar, for he gave me the luxury to do the research. I would not have been able to complete this work had it not been for his constant encouragement and support (both financially and emotionally). He believed in me and my potential more than I believed myself.

This work has been completed with grace of God and blessings from my Sadguru Shri Aniruddha (Bapu) who has taught us “No task is impossible, if you and I are together”. Well, the impossible has been achieved and I am happy to present my thesis.
