ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

It is pleasure for me to thank all those who have helped me in several ways during my involvement in this research work.

First of all I express my heartiest gratitude to my supervisor Dr. Manoj Kumar, Reader & Head, Department of English, D.C.S.K. Postgraduate College, Mau, who has been very helpful during the supervision of this work. Despite his busy schedule he has generously given me sufficient time for the discussions from the inception to the completion of the work. This work could not have been possible without his patient and sustained supervision.

I deem it a matter of great privilege to express my profound gratitude to Dr. A.K. Mishra, Reader, Dept. of English for his valuable and learned guidance, consistent co-operation and keen interest in the completion of this work.

I am directly indebted for this work to Dr. Rashiqua Riyaz, Reader, Department of English D.C.S.K. Postgraduate College, Mau, for her valuable suggestions and co-operation.

I would like to express my profoundest gratitude to my parents and parents-in-laws and husband Mr. Mithilesh Tripathi for encouraging me to take up the work seriously. They have always been an ever-flowing source of inspiration, patience and encouragement to me.
I am thankful to the librarians of Central Library, B.H.U., Varanasi, National Library, Kolkata and British Council Library, New Delhi for the books they lent to me generously. I also take the opportunity of acknowledging my debt of gratitude to those writer and critics of Indo-Anglian Literature whose works I have consulted and also used in my thesis.

Finally, I am grateful to Mr. Raj Kumar Singh, Azamgarh for his prompt and impeccable typing of the thesis.

(Gauri Tripathi)
