CONTENTS

Preface

Chapter 1
Formative Influences on the Interplay of Religion and Politics in Israel

European Jewry in the Nineteenth Century
The ferment in Eastern Europe
Religious Responses to Zionism
Zionist ambivalences
The struggle for the soul of the Yishuv
Institutionalization of ideological conflict
Religion and Emerging Political System
Politics of Agudah Israel
The Search for a Constitution

Chapter 2
The Rise of Political Religion: Judaism and State, 1948-67

Constitutional Debates
Law and Religion
Electoral performance of religious parties
Orthodox Parties and Israeli Political Practice
Religious Legislation
Intra-religious conflicts
Compromises over the 'Divide'
The furore over personal law
Who is a Jew? debate

Chapter III
1967 and After:
The Politics of Redemption

Euphoria in Israel and Ferment in the Religious World
Kookist Thought and the New Religio-political Elite
The relevance of civil religion
Civil religion of Labor Zionism
Dealing with traditional myths
Civil Religion of Revisionism
The Statist interlude
Religious politics within a religious sub-culture
Jewish Fundamentalism charted
Factors Behind Likud's 1977 Victory
Political assertion of ethnicity: The case of Sephardi Jews
Begin and Judaism
Organizing religious nationalism: Gush Emunim
as a Fundamentalist phenomenon
Defining fundamentalism
Gush's schema for Jewish history
The New Civil Religion
The Bar Kokhba Controversy
Changing understanding of political myths
The celebrations of the civil religion: Holocaust Day
The Western Wall
Transmission of Civil Religion
The Mass Media
The Education system
The Army
Statements by political leaders
Fissures in the Right

Chapter IV
From Redemption to Routine: The Religious Right till the Rabin Assassination

The Rise of the Radical Right
The campaign in Yamit
Illegalism in Israeli political culture
Kahane's Radicalism
The Political Program of Rabbi Kahane
The settlement drive in the West Bank
Jewish settler violence and vigilantism
The Temple Mount controversy
Religious parties in the Eighties
Outworking of Orthodox agendas
The political assertion of the Ultra-Orthodoxy
Ethnicity and nationalism
Relative decline of the Gush Emunim
The Road to Oslo

Conclusion: Politicised Religion or Theologised Politics?

Bibliography

Appendix