

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I consider it as a pleasant duty to acknowledge the abundant help and affection received from different quarters for the successful completion of this work.

I would like to express my gratitude to all the teachers in the Department of Sociology for the training which enabled me to write this thesis.

I do not have adequate words to express my gratitude to my supervisor and mentor Prof. Ratna Naidu. I was attracted to Sociology and have taken it up as my profession mainly because of the interest kindled in me by her lectures in the post-graduate classes. Ratna Naidu's training has not only enriched me academically but has also instilled in me a work ethos and a sense of commitment to the profession. Without the inspiration and support offered by her, it would have been impossible to complete this thesis. I take this opportunity to thank her profusely.

I am indebted to (late) Prof V.L.S Prakash Rao, Bangalore, Prof. T. Krishna Kumar, ISEC Bangalore, for sensitizing me to spatial analysis and the concept of the region. I am indebted to Prof. E. Hari Babu, University of Hyderabad, for introducing me to various statistical packages and giving valuable suggestions while computing and analysing the data.

Purendra Prasad and Parthasarathy have been a source of great support and strength. Extensive discussions with them strengthened the present study.

I am grateful to Sarvasri Venkatesh, Sanjeevarayudu, Sreenivasulu, Kanangi Govindu and sons, Pothaliah, Assistant Director of Sericulture Department, Dharmavaram and Anantapur, Lakshmi Narayana, Statistics Officer, Dharmavaram Municipality, Subramanyam, Dy.S.O, Chief Planning Office, Anantapur, and others for the acts of kindness they have done to me during my stay in Dharmavaram.

I owe my thanks to Sarvasri Nirmal Kumar Prasad, Nasaraiah, Ravindra, Guruviah, Poola Thayamma, Staff of Assistant India-Jagruthi Association, Mallikarjun, slate industrial workers and others for helping me in numerous ways during my field work in Markapur region.

I am extremely grateful to my beloved friends in the campus. The kind acts that they have for me are too numerous to mention here. I thank Subramanyam, Amanulla, Nagu, Mohsin, Arun Kumar Giri, Samba, Nagesh, Pat, Lachams and others for extending their valuable help for completing my dissertation.

I thank Sesha Sai and Gangaji for helping me in many ways while typing the thesis. I thank the library staff of University of Hyderabad, Jawaharlal Nehru University, Delhi University, ICSSR, National Institute of Urban Affairs, Indian Institute of Public Administration and Osmania University.

Financial Assistance provided by the University Grants Commission is gratefully acknowledged.

Murali Krishna