I wish to express my deep sense of gratitude to Dr. D. S. Rawat, Reader, Department of Geography, U.P. Autonomous College, Varanasi, who has been a perpetual source of inspiration and guidance all along during the course of preparation of this Doctoral Dissertation. In spite of his busy schedule in academic works, he always encouraged me and provided the valuable suggestion to upgrade this work up to the mark. Without his affectionate attitude it would have not bee possible for me to complete this doctoral dissertation.

Appreciation beyond words is due to Prof. M. B. Singh, Professor, Department of Geography, Banaras Hindu University, Varanasi for his inspiration and reinforcement for completing the Doctoral Dissertation. It goes without saying that without his peerless contribution, this work would not have envisaged fait accompli.

My special thanks are due to Dr. D. K. Singh, Head of the Department, Udai Pratap Autonomous College for his benign gesture in granting me extra time for pursuing and completing the work.
My feeling of gratitude is due to all the teacher educators of my department for their wholehearted cooperation in ensuring the completion of the work.

My feeling of gratitude is due to my parents and other family members for their wholehearted cooperation and blessings.

I owe a debt of gratitude to my friends namely Sanjay Bhaiya, Dr. A. K. Singh, Batuk Nath Dubey, Rajnish Raghaw, Ramesh Chand Pandey, Umesh Singh, J.P. Singh, Randhir Singh, Amit Singh, S.K. Singh and last but not least Deshratna Dwivedi with whom I work, each of whom in a different but equally important ways, contributed to any thinking and writing.

My sincere thanks are due to Ratan Dwivedi and his co-worker Ram Sudhar Singh who typed the work with great care and praiseworthy responsibility and thanks are due to Mr. Lal Ji Singh Yadav for excellent work in the preparation of Maps.

To all these persons, I owe a debt of gratitude and appreciation. They are not, of course, responsible for any error of omission or commission.
