This thesis arose in part out of research spanning over a few years that has been done since I joined the molecular virology laboratory of National Institute of Cholera in the mid of 2009. From that time, I have worked with a number of people whose contribution and cooperation in assorted ways to my research work has led to the completion and making of the thesis. I take this opportunity in expressing my heartiest gratitude to all those people who stood by me at the times of need.

I am thankful to my Ph.D supervisor Dr. Mamta Chawla-Sarkar, whose invaluable support, advice, guidance and crucial contribution have given me the courage to meet the challenges and achieve my goal. Thank you for giving me the opportunity to explore the fascinating world of Virology.

I thank Dr. Sekhar Chakraborty, the director and head of the virology division of this institute, for granting me the privilege to continue my work in this esteem institute.

I sincerely thanked to my lab members; Triveni Mam, Rakhi Mam, Ganesh Sir, Anurodh, Dipanjan da, Mehuli, Parikshit, Shiladitya, Umesh, Satabdi, Sampa, Rahul, Satarupa, Paulomi, Anindita, Mukti da, Madhu, Nattu, Sathi di, Shyamal da, Malay Da, Ashish, Papiya di, Bera da, Khokon da and Musharoff for their kind help, and enormous love throughout this journey.

I would like to show my gratitude to my teachers. A special thanks to my sir Dr. Nabakanta Jana, whose support, vital suggestions and encouragement in each step of my journey since my college days have been so valuable. I am also thankful to Dr. Sagartirtha Sarkar. His valuable suggestions at the time of need means a lot to me.

I will be ever grateful to my family. The journey could not be completed without the support especially of my parents and in-laws and without the love, care, affection, of my husband and my son.
I am thankful to all of my wonderful, amazing and loving friends; a person can wish for. Thank you Sharmistha, Biplab, Jayanta, Sudhir, Sirsendu da, Bindu di, Kalpita di, Ishita di, Subhanan, Aparupa, Saswati, Dola, Raju, Soudip, Kalloj, Anupam and Surajit da for the continuous encouragement and support.

The completion of the thesis work gives me immense satisfaction but this joy will always remain incomplete, as I could not share this with one of my best friends late. Mr. Partha Pratim Bag; who, always inspire me to continue research work and always helped me through difficulties in my life. These words are not enough to express my gratitude to him.

Finally, I would like to thank everybody who was important to the successful realization of this thesis, as well as expressing my apology, that I could not mention personally one by one.